FIST FIGHT NEAR AS BLACK IS GIVEN COMMITTEE OKAY

Confirmation in Senate Is Virtually Conceded, But Foes of Senator Will Wage Battle on Floor Before Voting.

COPELAND BRINGS IN KU KLUX KLAN

Attempt To 'Besmirch' Alabamian Is Laid to Leaders of Opposition; Anger Marks Argument

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A fist fight almost broke out among senators today when critics of Senator Hugo L. Black's nomination to the supreme court began a vigorous, but concededly hopeless, battle to prevent senate confirmation.

Temper flared to white heat in the senate judiciary committee before that group voted, 13 to 4, to approve the nomination without the public hearings demanded by the opponents.

A clash between Senator Dietrich, Democrat, Illinois, and Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, culminated when the latter charged physically upon the bulky Dietrich, only to be restrained by other senators.

Burke had proposed that the committee summon Black before it for questioning on his constitutional views, and about his seizure of private telegrams when he was head of the senate lobby investigators.

Charges Hurdled. Angriest, Dietrich, without mentioning names, had declared that committee members had attempted to "besmirch" Black in the newspapers by trying to link him with certain organizations. There had been reports that senators might seek to determine whether Black was once supported by the Ku Klux Klan.

Black was not in the chamber during the discussion. He remained in seclusion on Capitol Hill during the day.

Defeat Admitted. Leaders of the opposition publicly admitted defeat in advance. Nevertheless, they clung to their plans for a series of speeches when the nomination actually comes before the senate tomorrow. They predicted one to two days debate before a vote is taken.

Meanwhile, three Republican senators, Steiwer, of Oregon; White, of Maine, and Bridges, of New Hampshire, declined to wait until the nomination is brought up formally, and, a few hours after the committee had acted began expressing their opposition on the floor.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, majority leader, joined other Democrats in questioning Bridges.

When Bridges said he would like the bar associations to be heard, Barkley suggested they "just want to come down here and talk and nauseate." The Kentuckian said that if Bridges had any information on Black's fitness he should give it to the senate.

Senator McKeller, Democrat, Tennessee, said 20 senators had been in service all during Black's term, and demanded:

"Do you mean to say that the president of a bar association in

Mattern Ready To Join Russians for Search; Signals Are Reported; Messages Are Garbled.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Threatening weather over the vast Arctic wastes where six Russian trans-polar fliers are missing temporarily delayed a searching flight today by Jimmy Mattern, American ace who owes his life to one of the Soviet airmen.

Mattern, who sped non-stop yesterday over the 2,600 miles here from Oakland, Cal., continued preparations to join the hunt as soon as weather conditions permitted.

Russian agents here, joined today by A. Vartanian, Soviet representative in Seattle, said they had been advised by Moscow that faint radio signals were heard from the missing plane yesterday, Moscow time.

Fliers Believed Alive. Mattern and other fliers in Fairbanks for the search expressed belief the messages indicated Pilot Sigismund Levanevsky and his five companions had survived a landing in the polar wastes, where they were forced down Friday on an attempted 4,000-mile flight here from Moscow.

Vartanian, who flew here from Juneau, said he would take charge of the hunt for his countrymen. He conferred with Soviet representatives and said he would meet later with Mattern, Joe Crosson, Alaska's most noted airman, and other pilots.

From both sides of the north pole, aviators converged on the winter-ridden area in which Pilot Sigismund Levanevsky and five companions were believed forced down. They left Moscow for Fairbanks at 10:13 a. m., Atlanta time, Thursday.

The latest message to be attributed to their plane was received by the Soviet government radio station at Irkutsk, Siberia. The Soviet embassy at Washington said that at 3:23 a. m. Atlanta time today radio signals "of a weak and irregularly working transmitter" were heard at Irkutsk on the lost craft's frequency, and that "there

TAX LOOPHOLE ACT PASSED BY HOUSE; FARM AID SNAGGED

Bill To Plug Holes Is Okayed 173-0; President Again Scored by Fish in Sharp, Bitter Debate; Adjournment Is Near.

CAUCUS DEMANDED ON PAY PROPOSAL

Committee Approves Low-Cost Housing Program of $500,000,000 Instead of $700,000,000 Asked.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A bill to plug tax law loopholes received house approval today and went to the senate.

Accompanied by a few Republican jibes and references to what their critics called tax practices of members of the Roosevelt family, the bill went through with little apparent opposition. And only a few "perfecting" amendments.

Speaker Bankhead announced the standing vote on passage of the bill as 173 to 0.

Pay Bill Despaired. Leaders, apparently resigned to the Roosevelt wage and hour bill's joining court reorganization on the shelf, concentrated on passing the tax measure and a low cost housing bill before the seven-month-old session ends, possibly Saturday.

Debate on the tax measure was limited but sharp and bitter. Representative Fish, Republican, New York, from President Roosevelt's home district, charged that the President had admitted at a press conference three years ago using the same tax loopholes which he now decries. Fish argued that the pending bill is all right "as far as it goes" but that tax-exempt securities constitute the greatest revenue leak.

Tenancy Aid Threatened. Another administration policy—farm tenancy aid—encountered last-minute difficulties in congress during the day. The house appropriations committee recommended that the policy not be put into effect until next year. It omitted from a $78,502,000 deficit appropriation bill the $20,000,000 requested by the agriculture department for farm purchase loans to tenants and for retirement

BLONDE INDICTED IN MASS MURDERS

Tears Flow as Accused Woman in Jail Cell Hears Poisoning Charges

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Her eyes showing red behind her glasses, blonde Mrs. Anna Hahn accepted service in Hamilton county jail today on indictments accusing her of the poison slayings of two elderly Germans.

Gone was the laughing, nonchalant, debonaire air she displayed last Friday when her attorneys lost a legal move to obtain her release on a habeas corpus.

Indictments Returned. The grand jury, acting speedily, returned the indictments within 15 minutes after hearing Acting Detective Chief Patrick Hayes, Detective Lieutenant George Schattler, Detective Walter Hart and Assistant Prosecutor Frank M. Gusweiler report on evidence gathered in what Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcall termed "the biggest mass murder in this country."

The brief indictments charged Mrs. Hahn with the "malicious and premeditated" slayings of George Geilman, 67, who died suddenly July 6, and Jacob Wagner, 78, who died June 3, leaving an unwitnessed will naming Mrs. Hahn a beneficiary. Hayes charged the will was forged.

Judge Charles S. Bell, upon receiving the grand jury report, ordered the superintendents named 10 of their number to sit with the

BOARD INDORSED BY SCHOOL HEADS

Georgia school superintendents yesterday indorsed "every step and every act" the State Board of Education has taken in its new "fine program of education."

The officials, representing city and county systems in 143 of the 159 Georgia counties, also voiced approval of the free textbook program and the manner in which the state board "conducted the purchase of books."

The high type of books they have purchased, a formal resolution said, "and the fair and honorable manner in which the proceedings have been carried on constitute 'a record as an ideal illustration that the public's business can be handled without graft, with economy and with efficiency.'"

F. D. R., WAR CHIEFS CONFER ON CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—High officials are discussing the possibility of rushing reinforcements to China to protect American nationals in the undeclared war there, it was indicated tonight.

This word circulated after President Roosevelt held an unheralded conference with high-ranking army and navy officers. Present at the parley were General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, and Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, acting chief of naval operations. Secretary of State Hull and Stanley K. Hornbeck, chief of the Far Eastern division of the State Department, also called at the executive mansion.

While none of them would comment afterward, it was hinted strongly that the question of reinforcements was being discussed. Some officials were reported to Tender Bearing 1,000 American and British Refugees Heads Down Whangpoo; Must Pass Close to Smoking Guns.

CRAFT IS FLYING HUGE U. S. FLAGS

Terrific Blasts Commence Just as Boat Leaves Despite Promises To Hold Up During Rescue Dash.

Other Stories and Pictures From China in Pages 3, 6, 8, 9 and 12

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—More than 1,000 American and British refugees set out this morning in frail tenders for a perilous journey down the Whangpoo river to the sea, endangered by falling shells from embattled Japanese warships.

There were 337 American women and children in one tender. Two other boats carried 850 British women and children seeking safety from the ceaseless, heedless battle that rocked and tore at this international city of 3,500,000.

As they began their journey, ten miles to liners waiting off Woosung in the mighty Yangtze, the Japanese warships opened a furious barrage.

The tenders paused momentarily, then proceeded, heading down river and destined to pass within a few yards of the smoking guns of the Japanese ships.

The American and other consulates had said earlier that both Chinese and Japanese had agreed not to enter into hostilities while the refugees were departing.

At mid-morning, however, the Japanese opened furious barrages at unidentified planes (presumably Chinese) hovering above.

The American Dollar line tender led the way, heading for the President Jefferson which would take the refugees to Manila. The British craft swung into line, close behind.

The refugees cowered in terror, crouched low or stayed below deck, while crowds watched fearfully from shore.

The planes approached from the west, and were assumed to be Chinese bombers. They turned northward above Soochow creek, heading over the river where the Japanese cruisers lay.

As the Americans backed from the customs jetty, a terrific blast of anti-aircraft guns roared. The Japanese were shooting over the International Settlement north of Soochow creek.

The Dollar line tender flew huge United States flags both fore and aft, and proceeded with comparative safety as the gunfire ended, at least momentarily.

'Suicide Destroyer' Sunk in Attempt To Torpedo Flagship Idzumo; Japanese Debarking Troops.

By H. R. EKINS, United Press Staff Correspondent.

SHANGHAI (Tuesday), Aug. 17.—The Japanese third battle fleet unleashed the full fury of its huge guns in the upper and lower reaches of the Whangpoo river today in an attempt to blast a threatened Chinese offensive to pieces before it could begin.

The bombardment, which began at dawn, signaled the beginning of a general battle on all major fronts for possession of this battle-scarred metropolis.

The Japanese opened fire on Chinese positions in Pootung across the Whangpoo river from the International Settlement and at the mouth of the Whangpoo, where the bombardment covered up landing of regular Japanese army troops. Chinese mortars and heavy artillery blazed in reply. The Japanese flagship Idzumo, target of a Chinese torpedo last night, participated in the Pootung bombardment. Fires broke out beside the Whangpoo less than a quarter of a mile below the Japanese consulate, in the Wootung district withing half a mile of the waterfront, and in Pootung opposite the Hongkew or Japanese section.

A shell fell in the International Settlement jail, containing 4,000 prisoners, and killed 10 Chinese prisoners and injured 70.

The Japanese naval attaché said that Japanese repulsed the Chinese central government troops in the first clash of the day at the Chungshing road section of Chapel, Chinese area, leaving 400 Chinese dead.

A United Press correspondent saw Japanese anti-aircraft shells hit a Chinese plane, which fell in flames in Hongkew.

Waterfront Affre. The Pootung waterfront fire broke out soon after the Idzumo's heavy guns loosed a broadside. The repercussion shattered windows in Sassoon house, British-owned office building housing the British consulate.

Planes whirled overhead despite a heavy drizzle and mist which handicapped observation.

Japanese reported that a savage battle was raging on a wide front in Chapel, the Chinese quarter. Ambulances changed through

Undermining of Great Area Feared If Toppling Idaho Land Dams River

BUHL, Idaho, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Throbbing land that "rumbled when we stomped our feet" marked the path for investigators today as they explored a "sinking valley" steadily crumbling a rich Idaho farm section.

A party of newsmen roamed over the heaving floor of the new-formed area and said the geological disturbance was spread over a region one and a half miles long and half a mile wide.

An all-day survey of the region eight miles northwest of the southern Idaho town brought more apprehension to farmers.

Exploration showed that the course of the nearby little Salmon river, is being narrowed and a large area of farm land, bordering the river, is breaking away and leaning over the water.

"When that section falls," one

RADIO COMMISSION POISED FOR FIGHT

Bitter Contest Expected To Reach Climax on Crossley Charges.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Acting Chairman Eugene O. Sykes has called a special meeting of the Federal Communications Commission for Wednesday which may bring to a head a bitter factional fight within the commission, it was learned tonight.

The dispute, dating back to 1934, when the present commission succeeded the old Radio Commission, was said to have been intensified by charges that the Crosley Radio Corporation, of Cincinnati, is violating FCC regulations.

The charges were made public by Commissioner George H. Payne who has ordered the corporation to answer questions regarding its super-powered station, WLW, by September 13. WLW broadcasts at 500,000 watts and, Payne claims, is thus able to "blanket" 11 states with its programs.

It was learned that Payne is irked by the employment by Crosley of Charles Michelson, Democratic national committee publicity ace, at a salary of $25,000 a year. It was reported that Michelson asked Payne's advice before accepting the job and that Payne warned him against it.

OPERATION OF STATION DEFENDED BY CROSLY

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(P)—Powell Crosley Jr., head of radio station WLW, defended tonight the station's use of 500,000 watts power and charged Commissioner George H. Payne, of the Federal Communications Commission, with "unwillingness" to meet representatives of the company.

First reservation was made by Major Quincy Melton, of Griffin, who was a candidate for national commander of the organization at last year's Cleveland convention. Major Melton indicated recently he would not be a candidate this year.

Included among the units which will leave on the special train, probably September 18, are the drum and bugle corps of Atlanta Post No. 1, and the band of the Sons of the American Legion in LaGrange.

Dr. Scott Patterson Ready To Fight Epidemic of Yellow Fever in Africa

Baptist Missionary Tells of Plans for Combating Scourge in Nigeria.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON,
Pastor Druid Hills Baptist Church.

"I want to go to heaven when I die, but I am not homesick. I want to live as long as I can. I want my life to count for Jesus every day of the earthly journey," said Dr. Scott Patterson, Southern Baptist missionary to Nigeria, Africa, as he stood on his crutches at Druid Hills Baptist church yesterday.

This was Dr. Patterson's last address in America before sailing within a fortnight for Liverpool and thence to the west coast of Africa. He goes to Africa to meet an emergency which has been thrust upon the province in which he labored for 20 years by a yellow fever epidemic which has taken the lives of two missionaries and many natives.

Dr. Patterson was called to Richmond two weeks ago to consider with the board of foreign missions the emergency which this scourge of yellow fever has occasioned. The board had refused to allow Dr. Patterson's return to the field for several years, due to his poor health resulting from previous service there. When this last emergency arose, the board realized that he was the one living missionary sufficiently familiar with the language, the people and the topography of the country to give immediate aid. Physical examination revealed that he had recovered amazingly since his last examination, and the board consented to his return.

Willie to Aid.
"All there is left of me is gladly placed on the altar of service for the people of Nigeria whom I have served and for whom I would gladly die," Dr. Patterson told the board. Returning to his home at Madison, Ga., he told his wife of the emergency and asked her what she thought of his going. She said: "I do not see any Christian could hesitate in an hour like this. You go and I will stay here with the children. We can manage some way, and perhaps your immediate return will mean the saving of the lives of some of the stricken missionaries and many of the natives."

Dr. Patterson went to Africa with Dr. Patterson on his former missionary trip. Their children, all except one, were born in Nigeria. Their first born was buried there in Mrs. Patterson's wedding dress. Dr. Patterson made the little coffin with his own hands and conducted the funeral service as the two stood beside the open grave.

Asked for Nurse.
Dr. Patterson told the board for trained nurse money to take at least one trained nurse with him. The board refused this request due to a lack of funds and the increased expense of the mission due to the death of two missionaries and the serious illness of several others. Dr. Patterson returned to Georgia to raise the money. He set forth the need of taking this trained nurse. There was little difficulty in raising the $1,000 which he requested, with several hundred dollars additional.

Yesterday Dr. Patterson was in Atlanta for the farewell message, delivered at the Druid Hills church, and to arrange final details in connection with his early sailing on the S. S. Samaria. He said that the one thing he wanted to arrange which he had not yet been able to do, was to take a light pickup truck.

"I never like to hear people talk about sacrifice," said Dr. Patterson as he stood before a big audience, leaning on his crutches—his upturned face a study in surpassing self-reliance. "I doubt if we should ever use the word, and yet I can tell you that I know something of what it costs to take up one's cross and follow Jesus."

"We buried that first baby there in Africa, and then I fell ill with the jungle fever. They bound my body for months. I was taken to England and then to America where I was treated in New York and at Cornell and later in Atlanta. They told me everywhere that I had no chance to live, but I did."

Taken by Accident.
"And then our boy, in whom our hopes and dreams were lodged, just coming into adolescence, was suddenly taken from us in an accident. Some of you remember that. And amid it all I kept saying to my wife, 'All things work together for good to those who love God.' And brave soldier that she is, she walked with me through all the days, relying implicitly upon His will and purpose. And now my broken body is somewhat mended. I can drive a car, though I have to walk on crutches. I have plenty of strength, I feel, for many years of hard work in Africa. And I am going back—going back into the face of death, but I am going unafraid."

There was not a dry eye in the audience as all listened to this soldier of the cross tell of the joy as he turns his face again to this stricken land in far-away Africa. People wept softly as the missionary moved on, step by step, in a positively inspired declaration of his faith to give up everything for the sake of Christ.

Miss Frances Jones, one of the missionaries who died from yellow fever in Nigeria, was the niece of Dr. M. Ashby Jones, of Atlanta. The other dead missionary was Miss Lucile Reagan, principal of the Southern Baptist school at Lagos. Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Long and Miss Kathleen Manley are now stricken with the dread disease. Other missionaries have been removed to quarantine hospitals. Dr. Patterson will reach Nigeria about October 1.

DAWES WITNESS CLEARED OF FRAUD

J. B. Wooten Absolved on Gas Station Charges.

Charges of cheating and swindling, made against J. B. Wooten, of 355 Brooks avenue, N. E., who was a witness for E. Cutler Dawes in the case against Patrolman A. Douglas Poole, were dismissed yesterday by Justice of the Peace W. J. Langley in DeKalb county. Langley declared that there was no cause for any criminal action in the charges of F. A. Harbin, president of the Atlanta Marble and Granite Company, and C. O. Bloodworth, operator of a filling station at 1634 McLendon avenue. They swore out warrants for Wooten, alleging he cheated and swindled them in connection with gasoline purchases. H. O. Hubert, Wooten's lawyer, said:

Wooten was a witness against Patrolman Poole last Friday when Poole was found guilty of manhandling and mistreating young Dawes, who is the nephew of former Vice President Charles G. Dawes. Wooten declared he was arrested on the warrants early Friday morning.

COURT BARS VOTE ON RAILWAY MERGER

Judge Rules Plan Would Be Unfair To Certain Stockholders.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(P)—A state judge, ruling that the proposed merger of key holding companies in the Van Sweringen railway system was unfair to one class of stockholders, ordered the stockholders today not to vote on the merger.

Judge Samuel K. Dennis said the merger plan was not illegal or unfair in general, but added:

"The legal and illegal features are so inextricably interwoven and related that the plan must be dealt with as an entirety and not by piecemeal."

The plan would have united the Chesapeake Corporation, majority stockholder of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, and the Allegheny Corporation. It was proposed in July and was to have been voted on tomorrow. Last week, however, a petition for an injunction was filed by Tri-Continental Corporation, Selected Industries, Inc., Brocco Corporation, Aldebaran Corporation and the University of Pennsylvania.

They held some of the Series A, preferred, non-voting stock of the Allegheny Corporation. Judge Dennis held a hearing Friday and today signed a permanent injunction to bar the merger.

CIO ORDERS 2,000 BACK TO SILK JOBS

Efforts To Settle 8-Day Dispute Continued by Other Mills.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 16.—(P)—The CIO today ordered 2,000 striking silk weavers to return to work Wednesday in 33 shops in this area which have signed agreements with the CIO Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

The agreements were signed last week in New York at negotiations between the Silk and Rayon Manufacturers Association, which is a group of large textile manufacturers, and Sidney Hillman, national head of the TWOC.

Meanwhile, the CIO and Silk Commission Manufacturers Association, whose members claim to employ the bulk of the 4,000 weavers in the Passaic valley textile area, continued efforts to settle the eight-day-old strike.

Six additional throwster shops, where raw silk is placed on spindles, reopened here today after agreements were signed. There are an estimated 2,000 throwsters employed in this section.

RULING OUTLAWING CLOSED SHOP CONTRACTS APPEALED

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 16.—(P)—A court ruling, outlawing closed shop contracts, was termed contradictory to state and federal constitutions and laws in an appeal to the state's highest court today.

In a petition to the court of errors and appeals, Meyer M. Semel, counsel for striking employees of the International Ticket Company of Newark, listed 21 reasons for reversing the ruling which labor leaders said would, if upheld, be a "death blow" to unionism.

PALM BEACH SOCIALITE DENIES MATE'S CHARGES

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 16.—(P)—Mrs. Emeline Harriman Spencer today denied allegations made by her husband, Howland Spencer, of Palm Beach and Newport, and asked that a divorce be granted her.

Her cross-bill said the difference in their ages caused their disagreement. Spencer last week asked a divorce on grounds of "extreme cruelty."

Second Lindbergh Son, 5, Rambles on Birthday

WEALD, England, Aug. 16.—(P)—Jon Lindbergh, who likes to climb trees and wade in his father's pond, was five years old today.

He spent the day in the rambling old Kentish house where he lives with his mother and father and baby brother, Land Morrow Lindbergh. His father was away today.

Ever since his parents, saddened by the kidnapping and death of their first son, came to England on the last day of December, 1935, they have lived in deep seclusion.

At the long barn, the Lindberghs' ancient, timbered house on the green Kentish Downs, there were many things to keep a five-year-old busy, even without his dad, presumably conferring with his scientist-friend, Dr. Alexis Carrel, on the continent.

William T. Henry Buried

WILLIAM THOMAS HENRY.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR WILLIAM T. HENRY

Last tribute for William Thomas Henry, 75-year-old Atlanta businessman, was paid at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dr. Louis D. Newton read the funeral services from Spring Hill.

Active in his business interests until a few days before his death, Mr. Henry had been associated with an Atlanta milling concern for almost 40 years. At the time of his death he was treasurer and a member of the board of directors.

He died Sunday at his residence at 1273 Ponce de Leon boulevard.

MRS. H. E. BODIFORD DECLARED SUICIDE

Funeral To Be Held Today for Victim of Bullet; Eye Affliction Held Cause.

Final rites for Mrs. H. E. Bodiford, 42, of 616 Kennesaw avenue, N. E., who died a short time after she was found in her room Sunday with a bullet wound in her head, will be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning from Spring Hill, with the Rev. W. M. Barrett officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

A coroner's jury yesterday found that death was caused by "a pistol wound of the head inflicted by the deceased while she was temporarily deranged."

Witnesses testified that Mrs. Bodiford had an ulcer on her right eye, and that though physicians had assured her it was an ulcer, she believed it to be more serious.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Sarah Lee Bodiford; a son, Homer E. Bodiford Jr.; her mother, Mrs. S. A. Dempsey; a sister, Mrs. May Ganey, of Charleston, W. V., and a brother, C. A. Dempsey, of Chicago.

SHELTERING ARMS' NURSERIES LICENSED

Two day nurseries operated in Atlanta by the Sheltering Arms Day Nursery Association yesterday were granted licenses by the state department of public welfare. They are the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery at 403 Washington street and the Osgood Saunders Day Nursery at 214 Baker street.

Miss Frances Steele, director of the children's division of the welfare department, highly praised the operation of both institutions as well as Miss Lillian Wood, director of the Cornelia Moore home, and Miss Arabelle Beecher, director of the Saunders home.

LEGAL SNAG DELAYS PENSION FOR MELTON

Delay in granting Patrolman J. S. Melton a pension resulted yesterday because of a legal snag. City Comptroller B. Graham West, secretary of the police pension board, said.

Melton, reinstated last Friday by the police committee and granted a 30-day leave of absence without pay, cannot draw a pension until he is in active service on the pay roll, the pension board was advised. Mayor Hartsfield said Police Chief M. A. Hornsby would be instructed to put Melton to work for a few days in order to clear the technical difficulty.

FATHER SUES CITY IN SEWER TRAGEDY

R. E. Rogers Files Suit for $25,000 for Son's Death;
Worker Seeks Damages.

Charging negligence to the city in the construction of a sewer into which 8-year-old Herschel Rogers was swept to his death August 2, R. E. Rogers, father of the boy, yesterday entered a claim for $25,000 damages against the city.

His claim was served on city council simultaneously with another $25,000 claim by Albert Walker, workman, who charges his foot was permanently disabled when he fell 85 feet from the roof of the city auditorium several weeks ago.

Rogers asserted the sewer opening into which his son was swept while wading on Rawson street between Central avenue and Pryor street was improperly constructed and maintained.

The father charged the son was "washed into the manhole opening" of the sewer and was "bruised, battered, hurt, drowned and killed" as the result of negligence on the city's part.

Both $25,000 claims were referred to the claims committee of council. Walker charges a rafter was loosed as he was at work on the roof of the auditorium and that he fell 85 feet into the basement, mangling a foot.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS ARE TRANSFERRED IN SOVIET SHAKEUP

Surprise Move Believed To Presage Fall of Several High Leaders.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—(UP)—A series of unexpected transfers, perhaps presaging the fall of several high Russian leaders, jolted Soviet officialdom tonight.

The two most important figures replaced by others and transferred to "new work" were Innokenti Khalepsky, one-time telegraph operator who rose to commissar of posts and telegraphs, and G. T. Grinko, veteran and well-known finance commissar.

Simultaneously it was revealed that Ivan Kraval, vice president of the important state planning commission, and chief of the statistical administration, was removed from office and denounced, with more than a dozen close associates, as "an enemy of the people."

V. Y. Chubar, member of the politburo, himself took over the finance commissariat, indicating the importance of the step. The fate of Grinko was mentioned tersely in a brief communiqué which said he was transferred to "new work."

M. D. Berman, who as vice commissar of the Nivd (commissariat for internal affairs) was credited with building the Baltic-White sea and Moscow-Volga canals, replaced Khalepsky in the commissariat for posts and telegraphs.

Editor's Note: In 1931 Elizabeth Lantry, a Kansas City (Mo.) girl, married Morris J. Harris and went with him to China, where he is Associated Press Shanghai bureau chief. Today she boarded the first tender to the S. S. President Taft with 200 American women and children refugees. Before the tender started it was under fire. Mrs. Harris took the round trip and sent home this story:

By ELIZABETH LANTRY HARRIS.
SHANGHAI, Aug. 16.—(AP)—I took a round trip today on the tender which carried the first 200 American women and children refugees out of Shanghai. It was a frightful, war-time journey.

Before the tender started, several splinters of shrapnel pierced the deck and fell into a cabin crowded with refugees, but luckily no one was hurt.

We had been waiting the arrival of a naval guard when seven Chinese planes swooped down and sent us scurrying to the cabin. Anti-aircraft guns crashed and bombs exploded so terrifically that they seemed to be almost upon us.

Women Are Frantic.
The women, some of whom carried tiny children, were frantic. They cried, but none of them screamed.

As soon as the bombardment was over, sailors from the U. S. S. Augusta arrived and ordered all women and children to go down two decks, where we were virtually shut in. Then the boat got under way.

Throughout the trip downstream we heard continuous firing. To keep us calm, sailors handed out sandwiches and apples and talked cheerfully. When we arrived at the President Taft we were greeted with lusty cheers.

Near the steamer, there were 14 Japanese warships. Our group of refugees boarded the President Taft. Among them were a few men. I waved good-bye to my nephew, who was on his way home to America.

Fires Started.
Off Wosung, five Japanese vessels lined up in a row were shelling continuously in the direction of the Chinese civil center at Kiangwan. The shells started a number of fires.

From reports we had heard in Shanghai I had expected to see the Whangpoo river front virtually in ruins, but there appeared to be comparatively little damage. Instead of being destroyed, the Chinese Junk docks were scarcely harmed.

One Japanese mill practically was destroyed, but a deserted summerhouse colony was seemingly intact.

There were only a few passengers on the way back—mostly Chinese returning to Shanghai from Hong Kong.

Japan Imperialism Cause of War, Says Ex-Atlantan, Now From China

Pull All Foreigners Out of Shanghai, Warns Dr. R. M. Paty, Here To Address Kiwanians; Other Ex-Georgians Tell Horrors of Clash.

Japan's overweening imperialism is the cause of today's bloody fighting in China, Dr. R. Morris Paty, former Atlantan, now of Chingchow, China, asserted yesterday.

"Pull all the foreigners out of Shanghai and all other danger points," he warned.

Dr. Paty, who will address the Atlanta Kiwanis Club at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon said that Japanese militarists apparently believe they can keep on biting "huge chunks" out of China.

His subject before the luncheon club will be "The Chinese-Japanese Situation."

Dr. Paty is head of the Stephenson Memorial hospital at Chingchow, China. He graduated in medicine at Emory University in 1923.

During his present leave of absence, Dr. D. V. Patterson, another Emory graduate, is acting superintendent of the hospital. Two American doctors and two American nurses also are on the hospital staff. Dr. and Mrs. Paty and their 10-year-old son, Donald, are guests of Dr. and Mrs. R. H. McClung.

Predictions Came True.
With the recent outbreak in China, predictions of George M. Battey, formerly of Atlanta, came true. And since they have his visit to his mother, Mrs. George M. Battey, and his sister, Miss Adrienne Battey, has been postponed.

Mr. Battey, who has edited the Square Deal in Shanghai for a number of years and who recently gave this up to become correspondent for the North China Press, wrote:

"If it is true, as the press asserts 'does not have and does not want the support of John L. Lewis and the CIO.'" board in solving the problem of selecting texts for high school use.

Governor Rivers, chairman of the board, pointed out there never has been a state standard for high school texts and that "practically every school has a set of its own."

The board, together with the superintendents' committee, will determine whether to adopt a limited list for use this year, or to allow each school to continue to use the books now on its lists.

He pointed out most of the schools have purchased second-hand books of the type in use last year and that a limited list might mean the scrapping of many of these.

Delivery To Be Speeded.
Practically all grammar school books have been decided upon. Rivers declared, and will be delivered to the schools as rapidly as possible.

The Governor explained the new compulsory courses designed by the board for all schools in the state on health—embracing high-way safety, public health, first aid and temperance—and on agriculture and home economics.

Laud Flag Ruling.
The superintendents applauded when he outlined the requirement for each school to fly an American flag every day.

The Governor also told the members "ever for this program of state support of common schools and free textbooks must go to the legislature which made it possible."

The superintendents' committee named to work with the board on high school texts was:

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, of Atlanta; Fred A. Brinson, of Norcross; W. T. Burt, of Camilla; Max Tolbert, of Gordon county; I. V. Chandler, of Dalton; Jere Wells, of Atlanta; J. E. Purks, of Cedartown, and Sam A. Gardner, of Athens; B. M. Grier, of Athens, and B. A. Lancaster, of LaGrange.

Text of Resolution.
The text of the resolution praising the work of the board follows:

Whereas, we recognize that the greatest assets of the State of Georgia are our boys and girls and that the greatest instrumentalities for preparing these boys and girls for useful citizenship are the common schools; and

Whereas, for years it has been the highest hope of friends of education throughout the state that the schools of Georgia would be improved and advanced to a point where they would be the equal of the schools of any state of this nation; and

Whereas, it was known that to do justice to our boys and girls by making proper improvement of our educational system would necessitate the expenditure of millions of dollars and we are mindful of the fact that it requires unlimited patriotism, political courage and love of humanity for a Governor to lead the way in having our state do justice in this respect to the youth of the land; and

"Dawn of New Day."
Whereas, under the wise and courageous leadership of our beloved Governor we now see the dawn of a new day in education in Georgia.

Coppenger, who arrested the two negroes after working with Captain Edward Foster of the DeKalb police, spent practically the entire day checking on Fulton and DeKalb homes with help of the negro boy.

"We haven't even started itemizing the stolen goods recovered," Nahlik said. "It will take a week or more with about 75 homes in all robbed."

Kimball's procedure, police learned, was to follow comings and goings of society folk through Atlanta newspaper and in the absence of a family to back up his truck—he insists he's a junkman—and load it. In one instance, police said, the negro hauled away a bedroom suite.

HOW MANY LACK JOBS?

After unaccountable delay, there appears a probability that the nation may, in the not too distant future, learn just how many industrial workers are unemployed. The senate has voted for a census of the unemployed and it is expected that the house, unless adjournment prevents consideration, will concur in the plan.

The United States has struggled up from the abyss of the depression by guesswork. Billions of dollars have been spent on direct and work relief and, with few exceptions, the people have approved these gigantic appropriations. It was known, in general terms, that millions of would-be workers were idle and penniless and, if recovery was to come, it was essential that these victims of economic tragedy be helped.

There has been, however, a growing demand for a reliable census of the unemployed. To reveal, not only the national total of the enforcedly idle, but the states and industries most seriously affected.

Estimates as to the total have varied so widely as to be practically valueless. While relief authorities were calling for new appropriations in the billions, national organizations of manufacturers and other business groups were asserting that employment in private industry had increased until it was as great, or greater, than at the peak of 1929.

One guesser, Senator Vandenberg, put the probable figure of idle industrial workers, at less than 3,000,000 at the same time the National Industrial Conference Board estimated a total of 8,914,000. And, concurrent with these divergent guesses, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins declared "the rising total in private placements continues the trend which has been evident since the early part of 1936."

The American Federation of Labor gave its figure on the jobless on July 9, last, as 8,000,000. As for the south, John E. Edgerton, president of the Southern States Industrial Council, announces that employment in this section has gained more than 15 per cent over last year.

Whatever the truth may be, a careful national census will reveal it. Such a census, to be of full value, should be continuing, so changes in the picture may be evident as they occur.

When such a census is made and kept up to date the nation will be able to provide for the unemployed residue of workers in intelligent manner and undertake an essential task with knowledge of the full scope of the problem.

THE RAPE OF SHANGHAI

The civilized world looks on, helpless, in sad horror as Shanghai, the most beautiful city of the far east, crumbles in ruin under the shells of Chinese and Japanese guns and the bombs of fighting planes.

This city of approximately 3,500,000 people contains magnificent examples of modern architectural art. Its Bund is famous for panoramic charm and in its International Settlement are streets of stately edifices which rival any in the world today.

The havoc wrought in Shanghai reveals more forcefully even than in the Spanish civil conflict, the utter ruthlessness of modern war. There is nothing safe from the rending destruction of high explosive shells and those who direct those shells know no respect for their targets.

Likewise the truth is again driven home that in time of war there is, today, no safety for the civilian, man, woman or child. Mercy for the helpless is not in the lexicon of military tactics and the smashed bodies of the defenseless bear mute testimony to the ruthless savagery of the age.

Shanghai, with all its charm and modern glory, is in dire danger of being burnt upon the altars of battle. Hundreds of thousands, all over the world, who have gazed upon its skyline, will sorrow as the news of its immolation flashes around the globe.

And the lesson that will strike anew in every human heart, is the lesson that, unless the cause of world peace wins its struggle, civilization of this twentieth century may face obliteration.

It is hard to say what the great wall of China is good for in these times, unless it's lighting a cigar on the lee side.

SAD, BUT NOT HOPELESS

The plight of American missionaries, as well as of all Christian workers of other nations, in the war-torn areas of China is one to arouse world-wide sympathy. Recent news dispatches stated "American missionaries expressed fears that generations of effort and millions of dollars spent to spread the Christian religion might be nullified by Japanese domination of North China."

It is added that the Japanese object to the influence of Christian missions in conquered territories as inimical to their own program in continental Asia.

It is sad to see the material evidence of many years of sacrificing effort wiped out. It is heart-rending to be compelled to leave the scene of a lifetime of endeavor, of a life given to a cause held more dear and more sacred than any other man may serve.

But Christian missionaries who voice fear that the spreading of the gospel of Jesus Christ may be "nullified," speak without that faith which should animate all their days of work and lighten all their nights of fear.

For, if there is one truth which has been proven through all the ages since Calvary, it is that the spread of Christianity cannot be stopped, that nothing can halt the progress of Christ's conquest of the hearts of men.

Today, in many areas of the world, the Christian church is faced with difficulties greater than any she has known for half a century. In the land of the Soviet the state is seeking to build a new order of society without the church as its foundation.

In Naziland, Jews, Catholics and Protestants alike are tormented by a dictatorship which presumes to set itself above the eternal verities of religion.

In Italy men worship Mars with the jingo of nationalism first in their hearts, while in Spain both factions to civil conflict alike destroy and befool the symbols of Christianity.

The Protestant Christian community in China numbers more than 800,000, with 27,000 Chinese evangelists, pastors and teachers. More than half a million Chinese receive their Christian instruction from 28,000 Roman Catholic priests and lay helpers. There are 10,000 missionaries in China, more Americans than any other nationality.

The Japanese may, for a while, appear to have "nullified" the work of Christ in North China. But neither Japan nor any other power in all the universe can destroy the Christian's faith or wipe his knowledge of the eternal truths from the earth forever.

Even should days darker than now foreseen by the most hopeless descend upon the Christians of China, their case would not appear any worse, in the eyes of mankind, than did that of Christianity itself nearly two thousand years ago. At that time its Founder hung, derided, from a Roman cross, his followers had forewarned Him and the little handful who still believed were scattered into humble hiding places.

Mighty Rome, a little later, through sword and fire and persecution sought to stamp from the earth that scorned sect, they who followed the teachings of the lowly Nazarene.

Through the darkness of the middle ages, persecution and death was ever the lot of the true Christians.

Yet, through all the centuries, Christianity has survived and has grown greater in its influence upon the destinies of all mankind.

From the blood of the martyrs it arises with new strength and, if martyrdom should be the lot of China's Christians, they may know as they die that such death sows a mightier seed than can ever spring from the living.

"Nullified?" Never. Christianity in China, as in all the world, marches ever on in the hearts of men.

As long as there is an American citizen lacking food, without sufficient clothing for decent warmth and denied proper housing, the existence of surplus crops is but a silent witness to the failure of man's economy.

So long as there is a man, woman or child suffering by deprivation of the cotton, the wheat, the corn and the bacon that exist in those problem-surpluses, all the vaunted brilliance of governmental and business ingenuity is but a faulty, broken reed, a self-revealed inefficient system of distribution and supply.

NO END TO TAX REPORTS
(From The Birmingham News.)

A New York city corporation president recently compiled some figures on the number of tax reports his business must make to some governmental unit. The results have been printed in The Congressional Record.

This New York company must make 51 separate and distinct tax reports during a year. The taxes on which these reports must be made include a New York city sales tax, a city gross receipts tax, state old-age tax, state franchise tax, state resident tax, state report on stock issuance, and federal taxes for old age, unemployment, income and capital stock, as well as some minor taxes. This company owned no real estate and consequently was exempt from another tax on that. On some of these taxes, reports had to be made monthly, on others quarterly.

The figures for this state are probably not far different from those for the New York corporation. There is not much difference, either, as to number of reports to be made between the small and the large corporations.

There is not much the public can do about the costly business of making tax reports, but some saving might be accomplished if the city, state and federal governments could reach a little more uniformity as to time and manner of reports and information wanted.

Two Lanes Blocked.

Fast traffic, you know, is supposed to take the inner lanes and the slower moving vehicles those next to the curb.

Well, the two outer lanes were effectively blocked by parked cars. Not many understand, but one car parked to each block is all needed to make that traffic lane useless. And nearly all the way there was at least one parked car to each block.

Then, when at last we did find two consecutive blocks without parked cars—the slow traffic of town—the slow traffic all seemed to be in the fast travel lane. I know that car after car speeded by on my right, while I waited, with what patience I could, for the line of cars ahead of me—in the supposedly fast lane—to inch ahead.

On the Spring street viaduct, at the intersection leading to the Union depot plaza, a woman ahead of me, still in the fast lane, wanted to turn left. So did I, for that matter.

This Is Stupidity.

First a passenger car, coming from the Union depot and headed toward the Terminal, got half-way across one traffic lane in such position it could not go further, and it completely blocked the inner lane. Cars were waiting in line almost to Mitchell street before the driver finally conceded enough to back up three feet and allow the mess to unblock.

That got straightened out. Then the woman ahead of me turned left across one lane of traffic—of course stopping it. A truck driver going north on the inner lane, who couldn't possibly cross the intersection until the woman had moved out of the way, nevertheless saw he could progress two

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. E. BAUKHAGE.
COURT TO GET COURT ISSUE? WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—While administration senators tossed off the charges of unconstitutionality in the nomination of Senator Black for the supreme bench, legal experts in the Department of Justice didn't take the matter so lightly.

Although no formal opinion has been written by the attorney general as yet, much study has been given to the question, which admittedly has two sides, and data have been prepared for such an opinion.

It is quite conceivable, disinterested lawyers say, that the issue may yet be fought out right up to the supreme court itself. If, for instance, there were a five-to-four decision, with Associate Justice Black among the five, the defendant might refuse to abide by the ruling on the ground that the new member of the court wasn't a member at all.

The reasoning would be that the vacancy which Senator Black was appointed to fill was created by the retirement act, and the constitution, of course, forbids a member of congress from accepting a position in the creation of which he has participated.

RIGHT-LEFT FIGHT The shadow-boxing in the senate over the confirmation of the nomination of Senator Black to the supreme court will leave some scars, but it is just that—a shadow show—compared with the battle behind the scenes.

The latter isn't a new conflict, merely the resumption of warfare with some of the old generals and a lot of new recruits. It is the right vs. left fight again.

Part of the opposition to Black, like part of that in the court fight, is supposed to be "more of the same" which appeared in the "death sentence" fight over the utility holding companies bill two years ago. Anyhow, the administration spokesmen are going to shoot back in that direction in their defense.

Senator Black's appointment opened the old wounds and now becomes a skirmish in the continuing struggle between the lefts and the rights.

Just as the court fight collapsed, a drive was being planned which would have taken in every professional man and woman who could be reached by mail. One sector had already been put under concentrated fire before the vote on recommitment. It covered eight states, representing "doubtful" senators, and ammunition was being piled up to be used on the rest of the country, if needed.

With the court issue out of the way, there was a lull until another head was raised. Senator Black became the shining mark. Meanwhile, another excellent issue is developing in the New England state flood control compact. It will come to the fore when the Black smoke settles.

ADMINISTRATION AMMUNITION On the other side of the fence, the administration is piling up its own ammunition for a nation-wide campaign. Details of the plan, revealed in this column some weeks ago, are leading out in hints on the nature of the President's plans for a number of speeches reinforced by a whole network of others under the auspices of the Good Neighbor League.

WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS The nomination of Senator Black for the supreme court raised a lot of Cain with the sugar bill, though only a small group knows about it.

This is the story as told by some of the folk who are grinning with glee:

It seems that Senator Black was scheduled to make a radio talk on wages and hours, and other controversial matters last week. When he learned of his designation for the bench, he was a bit worried over the wisdom of public pronouncements on measures upon which the judicial body of which he may soon be a member may have to pass. He consulted with a friend in the senate.

"Oh, no," said his friend, "you mustn't do that. Why don't you get Senator Pepper to do the job?"

Senator Black agreed, and the Florida solon was pleased to substitute.

Senator Pepper was naturally quite concerned over his speech and didn't take the matter seriously until the next annual convention which was held in Milwaukee. None of us attended, because it was too far away for most, and anyway we couldn't get any of our people elected.

So at the Milwaukee convention the Moscow crowd decided to go CIO on the ground that if you elevate those who live in the valleys of society you benefit those who live on the peaks.

The national president made a speech in which he said that only a supercilious and snobbish aristocracy would take literally the original purpose of reviving suspender demonstrations to the exclusion of those who liked to watch demonstrations of exercising machines, razor strops, mechanical sock darners, mechanical pen and potato paring and slicing devices. He said the purpose was to benefit all those who liked to watch demonstrations of whatever kind, not only in store windows, but in hardware store windows, too, and even in the windows of empty stores.

Fate of Founders He was very much insulted toward us founding fathers, and when one of our original number got up and denounced him for a parliamentary trickster and a demagog, a big roughneck of the left wing element, whose presence in the watermelon demonstrations of those jiggling vibrators which reduce the heft of ladies (probably the very lowest type of window demonstration next to the spot remover demonstration), took a sock at our founding father and knocked him for a loop.

Well, they not only went CIO, despite the fact that many of us favored the AFL, and thus were put on the spot, but they adopted a resolution in favor of Stalin against Trotsky, the Madrid Communist against Franco's Fascist, and oysters against clams. They also adopted as a new high sign the clenched fist.

Of course, some of us may have sympathized with Stalin over Trotsky, Madrid against Franco and oysters against clams, but even so most of us thought these matters were not properly the business of our society. Nevertheless, our AFL sympathizers found themselves committed to an organization which they hated, our Catholics were delivered to the church burners and priest killers of Spain, and our oyster lovers were placed in the clam column against their wills.

Then they raised the dues $200 a year, instituted a series of fines and pledged themselves to throw the full strength of the CIO into the picket line around any office, plant or other business premises employing anyone who might resign from our society.

Personally, I wouldn't mind, except that I hate oysters and love clams, and will be damned if any bunch of dirty Communists and demagogues is going to make me hate clams and love oysters. I would join that Fascist Johnstown citizens thing in a minute, except that you never can tell what an organization will do after you are in. They might come out for tapoca.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Ado About NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Men, I have been having a terrible time lately over a problem which just grew out of nothing.

You know I used to like to watch men demonstrate suspenders in drug store windows. Well, a few years ago a friend of mine suddenly realized that this wasn't being done any more and hadn't been done to any serious extent since about 1915. So he thought it would be funny to get up a society for the revival of the demonstration of suspenders in drug store windows, and invite me to join it.

He got about 200 joiners at the start—men of all religious beliefs and political peculiarities. We paid 50 cents initiation fee, and a dollar a year dues, in return for which we received a funny card and the high sign. For the high sign, you opened your vest, put your hands under your galluses, ran them up and down, stretched the galluses and let them snap.

In the beginning that was all there was to it. We were supposed to vote for the national officers, but most of us didn't bother, and the original organizer and couple of others simply elected and re-elected themselves and changed the constitution and by-laws to suit themselves, usually in the direction of frivolity, but the idea caught on and two years ago there were 10,000 on the rolls, scattered all over.

About that time, politics and personal ambition reared their ugly heads. A clique got into the controlling offices and called a national convention in Denver, at which it was decided to open the rolls to people who liked to watch men demonstrate exercising machines and razor strops in drug store windows, although our original membership explicitly abhorred exercising machines and razor strop demonstrations, regarding them as aesthetically inferior to suspender demonstrations. Then the usurpers put through an amendment at the last minute to include persons who like to watch mechanical sock darners, pen and potato paring and slicing demonstrations, and potato paring and slicing demonstrations.

Founders We, the founding fathers, so to speak, regarded ourselves as the elite of those who liked to watch demonstrations in drug store windows, and resented all this with a slight feeling of betrayal. But there were a lot of Communists and professional organizers at work in the outfit by now, who knew all the school arguments and radical tricks, so we were swamped.

But still we original members did not take the matter seriously until the next annual convention which was held in Milwaukee. None of us attended, because it was too far away for most, and anyway we couldn't get any of our people elected.

So at the Milwaukee convention the Moscow crowd decided to go CIO on the ground that if you elevate those who live in the valleys of society you benefit those who live on the peaks.

Copper Has Fame Couple Married Even in Europe, In Show Room Letter Proves Of Auto Firm

Copper has a public in Europe now.

Copper is the big German police dog, master of 115 tricks, who was forgiven a police ticket for breaching Atlanta's anti-noise ordinance six weeks ago when he proved he was blowing an automobile horn to summon his mistress, Miss Mary Brinkhurst.

Yesterday Traffic Officer M. L. Thomas, who handed Copper the ticket and duly testified against the dog in recorder's court, got a letter, postmarked Amsterdam, from L. S. Randolph, of Tulsa, Okla., attending the World Boy Scout Congress in Holland. Enclosed was a clipping from the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, recounting Copper's brush with the law.

Randolph wrote to Thomas: "You may be interested to know that your kindness to dogs has been read about in far-away Paris and Amsterdam."

Thomas stored the letter and clipping in his wallet, considered consulting Copper.

The honking of automobile horns replaced the traditional wedding bells and the bridal path was strewn with wrecked auto fenders instead of rose petals in the unusual nuptials uniting Miss Lillie Mae Martin and William Z. Sample, both of Chamblée, Saturday night.

The brief ceremony was performed by the Rev. George McLarty in an Atlanta auto showroom on Peachtree street, where Sample is employed in the service department. The bride had as her maid of honor and only attendant, Miss Inez Daniel, and W. D. Bradshaw was the groom's best man.

GOVERNOR DENIES PATROL FAVORITISM

Has No Part in Selection of Men Now Training.

Governor Rivers said yesterday that he had no part in the selection of the 90 men now in training for the state highway patrol, adding that a protest from Elbert county claiming that no resident of that county was selected would be turned over to Judge Clifton E. Sutton, attorney for the patrol.

Representative D. K. Jones, of Elbert county, announced at Elberton that he had written Governor Rivers asserting that three men from Judge Sutton's home county of Wilkes were appointed to the patrol and none from Elbert. Jones said he had asked Governor Rivers in his letter if politics had not played a part in the selection of the men. Governor Rivers pointed out that the men were selected by Major John C. Carter, acting director of public safety, and that he was not consulted about them. He added that he had not yet received Representative Jones' letter.

T. R. Langley To Be Buried in East View Cemetery.

T. R. Langley, Georgia Power Company lineman who was killed Sunday when he was knocked off a power pole on Marietta street, near Ashby street, after touching a high tension wire, will be buried in East View cemetery this afternoon.

Final rites will be performed by Rev. T. T. Davis at 2:30 o'clock at Moreland Avenue Baptist church. Mr. Langley was attempting to adjust his safety belt when he touched a 4,000-volt wire and was knocked off the pole to his death, power officials said. Doctors declared death resulted from a fractured skull suffered when he fell, and not from the shock.

Mr. Langley was 43 years old and lived at 960 Bouldercrest drive, S. E.

2 FACE U. S. JURY AFTER STILL RAID

Charged with distilling liquor, Homer Reese and W. J. Mooney faced federal grand jury investigation yesterday after a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith. The two men were arrested after federal agents had seized and destroyed a 65-gallon metal still, 188 gallons of liquor and 2,000 gallons of mash in Gilmer county. Officers said Reese and Mooney fled with four other men when the still was captured. Bonds were set at $500 each.

SUN BAKES CROP IN MIDWEST BELT

Searing Winds Spreading Heat Over Farm Area; Omaha Has 100.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(P)—Searing winds spread intense heat across the midwest's broad farm belt today.

Temperatures generally moved steadily upward through the high 80's and 90's and passed the 100-degree mark at many points on the sun-baked plains.

Reports of damage to the bountiful corn crop set off a flurry of buying among perspiring traders in Chicago's big market.

The mercury mounted 25 degrees in 12 hours here. It reached 95 at 3 p. m.—one notch over the all-time high record for the date established in 1908, and within two points of the season's peak of 97, attained on June 24.

Beaches thronged.

Thousands of residents stripped down to swimming suits and hunted beaches.

Conditions were even worse out on the prairies. Readings beyond 100 degrees were registered at several points in Iowa and Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., had an even 100 at noon. Des Moines and Albert Lea, Minn., 99. The highest temperature of the year, 99, was recorded at Peoria, Ill. St. Louis sweltered in 95-degree heat. It was 100 at Omaha.

Other typical marks included: Cedar Rapids, 97; Springfield, Ill., 98; Milwaukee, 93; Indianapolis, 91; Louisville, 89; Detroit, 89; Cleveland and Minneapolis, 86.

Corn for future delivery closed 5-8 to 2-4 cents above Saturday's finish on the Chicago Board of Trade.

COLUMBUS WOMAN WELFARE DIRECTOR

Mrs. Evelyn Sayers Wilson Appointed by Board.

The State Department of Public Welfare, meeting in executive session with Governor Rivers yesterday, appointed Mrs. Evelyn Sayers Wilson, of Columbus, as welfare director of Muscogee county.

The appointment of Mrs. Wilson completed the state's roster of county welfare directors, the state department already having named directors for all other counties. "Additional information furnished the State Welfare Department by the Muscogee county board of public welfare enabled the state department to complete the qualification file of Mrs. Wilson, and she was formally approved director of the department of public welfare of Muscogee county this afternoon," Lamar Murdaugh, director of the state department, said in a formal statement after the executive session.

Meeting with the Governor and the state welfare board was a delegation from Muscogee county headed by H. K. Parks, chairman of the Muscogee county welfare board.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 16.—(P)—The Rust Engineering Company will construct a $6,000,000 180-ton paper mill at Fernandina, Fla., for the Fernandina Pulp & Paper Company.

Announcing awarding of the contract today, the engineering firm said the plant will be the first of commercial size designed to manufacture pulp from southern woods by the use of the bleached sulphite process.

The plant will be ready for operation by August 1, 1938, and will employ 400 men in addition to those engaged in wood cutting.

'It's Monstrous,' Cries Nantucket Of Serpent Tale

NANTUCKET, Mass., Aug. 16.—(P)—An aroused citizenry of this little island, which threatened recently to secede from the United States, tonight denounced what officials said was a plan to "balloon up" a story of an alleged sea serpent reported seen off the shore.

Asserting "babies have been frightened by the thought of a sea monster lurking off the island's shores," state Representative Swain condemned "a scheme" to inflate a balloon, 130 feet long and designed to resemble a monster, and label it "famous Nantucket sea serpent."

"I think that Nantucket people should know the facts of the sea monster story," Swain said.

"I hear that a New York store will eventually cash in on the publicity of Nantucket's 'sea serpent.' I cannot possibly see why some months ago over power rates and then over a steamship strike.

NATIONAL YOUTH BODY TO SLASH STUDENT AID

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(P)—The National Youth Administration said today the number of students receiving student aid next year would be reduced about one-third.

Last year the maximum number of needy high school, college and graduate students receiving such aid was 420,000. Approximately $33,000,000—an average of $15 to $20 a month for each student, was given out.

JERE WELLS URGES SPEED ON PWA CASH

School Chief in Capital for Federal Grant on County Projects.

Speedy allotment of Public Works Administration funds for a proposed $275,000 building program in the county education system was urged yesterday by Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools, who is in Washington conferring with government officials.

The PWA has asked for a 45 per cent grant. The county authorized bonds last June to meet its 55 per cent share of the total cost.

Wells said he told E. W. Clark, executive assistant to the administrator, that rapid growth of suburban communities in the Atlanta area had resulted in overcrowding existing schools. Representative Robert Ramspeck, of the fifth district, joined Wells in the conference with Clark.

The proposed new buildings will include high schools at Center Hill and Hapeville and an elementary school in Buckhead.

Superintendent Wells plans to return to Atlanta Wednesday or Thursday.

NAVY COMMISSIONS $4,000,000 DESTROYER

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—(P)—The U. S. Mugford, new $4,000,000 destroyer, was commissioned today at the Boston navy yard and prepared to leave in November on a shakedown cruise to Gulf of Mexico ports.

The Mugford, launched a year ago, has a displacement of 1,500 tons and will carry 158 officers and men. Lieutenant Commander James W. Whitfield is the commanding officer.

Pantless Man Sent To Jail in Blanket

"Bring in" W. E. Davidson, charged with being drunk, Judge A. W. Callaway instructed a bailiff in police court yesterday afternoon. Shortly the bailiff returned without the prisoner—but with a message. "He says he's sorry, your honor, but his pants are lost. He wants to plead guilty."

"Very well," replied the court. "Inform the prisoner he can pay a fine of $7 or go to the stockade for 10 days."

Davidson went to the stockade—wrapped in a blanket.

JAPANESE POUND SHANGHAI WITH FULL FURY OF BIG GUNS

FURIOUS BARRAGE LAID ON SHANGHAI FROM RIVER FRONT

Chinese Bomb Embarking Troops, Loose Explosives Along Whangpoo.

the streets amid the crash of shells and rattle of machine guns and rifles.

A few miles to the northwest, Chinese troops were attempting to prevent the landing of Japanese reinforcements at the mouth of the Whangpoo where it flows into the Yangtze river.

One Japanese transport came down the Whangpoo to the Japanese consulate in the International Settlement and began debarking khaki-clad troops.

The waterfront on the International Settlement side was crowded with spectators despite the danger.

Fire On Planes.

Two Chinese bombers flew down Soochow creek to the Whangpoo, dropping heavy bombs. Nearby Japanese warships, including the Idzumo, answered with anti-aircraft fire.

Five Chinese bombers attacked the Japanese naval landing party headquarters in the International Settlement.

Another Chinese bomber flew over the Japanese cruiser Idzumo. All anti-aircraft guns in the vicinity, including the Idzumo's, began a furious barrage.

Suddenly one of the first five bombers began to dive. It rolled over several hundred feet from the ground and burst into flames, plunging to the earth.

A British destroyer carried a contingent of British refugees to Woosung at the mouth of the Whangpoo river. The second destroyer began loading at the Bund. The British liner Rajputana awaited both destroyers at Woosung, ready to leave for Hong Kong.

"Suicide Ship" Is Sunk. A Chinese "suicide destroyer" which fired a torpedo at the Idzumo last night was sunk by Japanese naval guns. Two injured Chinese naval cadets from the destroyer were picked up and taken to a hospital. Four other cadets apparently went down with the craft.

The death toll here, including military casualties, was estimated at more than 3,500.

As Shanghai's new war entered its ninth day the "incident," which started the night of August 9 when Lieutenant Isao Saito and Seaman Yozo Saito, of the Japanese navy, were shot and killed by Chinese militiamen defending the Hunjiao airfield, had spread into an unprecedented conflict.

40-Mile-Long Front. The battle front extended along a line of more than 40 miles and an entire new sector had developed on the flat lands which form the eastern shore of the Whangpoo river north of Shanghai's international waterfront.

The Chinese general staff sent one of its German-trained divisions from Nanking across the Whangpoo above Shanghai proper yesterday and entrenched them in the new positions. Big mortars were ferried across the river during the evening and at night a bombardment of more than a dozen Japanese warships anchored in the lower river's comparatively narrow channel was started.

To save their ships, the Japanese landed large units at the mouth of the river and, under cover of a barrage from warships, attacked the Chinese positions.

To the west, along the 30-mile line formed by the Japanese defense area of the International Settlement, the Shanghai-Woosung railway, and northward to the banks of the Yangtze river, fighting was going on all along the line.

Chinese were on the offensive everywhere.

In the air the Japanese claimed they were establishing their supremacy, but Chinese bombing planes continued to hurl explosives down.

On the extreme northern front, where the general but unofficial Chinese-Japanese war started with a clash outside Peiping the night of July 7, Chinese appeared to be holding their own everywhere although the powerful Japanese Kwangtung army was in firm control of the important Peiping-Tientsin area and its immediate railway network.

The weather had cleared there and Japanese aircraft prepared again to go into the skies to bomb the Chinese. Eighty-fourth and Eighty-ninth divisions which for a week have resisted the efforts of Japanese mechanized columns to blast them from their strong positions in the mountain crags on either side of the Nankow pass.

Japanese Held Up. The whole Japanese offensive along the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, which Japan had planned as her first great campaign after the Peiping-Tientsin conquest, was held up by Chinese resistance.

Fighting continued south of Peiping on the Peiping-Hankow railway and south of Tientsin

Scenes in Heroic But Futile Peiping Defense

Chinese troops of the 37th division of General Sung Chieh-Yuan's 29th army are shown above guarding the approach to Marco Polo bridge near Peiping before the Chinese-Japanese conflict flared into a war of cataclysmic proportions. As the fighting around Peiping became more intense, two Japanese trucks, remains of which are shown above, were destroyed when a load of hand grenades and ammunition which they were carrying exploded near the Yungting gate at the south of the city when the Chinese defenders centered their fire on the vehicles. In a desperate effort to save Peiping, the Chinese planted an ambush outside the Yungting gate and forced the Japanese military truck, shown above, to crash into a tree after it had run into the trap. Two or three Japanese were killed in the engagement, one of many in the futile defense of Peiping that was precipitated by the incident which occurred at the gateway to the walled city of Wanpinghsien at Marco Polo bridge, shown above. This picture shows the damage done by Japanese shells at the city's eastern gate after the outbreak of hostilities. At the height of the recent warfare in that area, the entrance to Wanpinghsien is shown in the photograph above. With snipers active, the sandbagged streets present a desolate appearance. After a spirited defense by the Chinese, the city was captured by the Japanese when the latter took over near-by Peiping.

Saturday's aerial bombings and yesterday's artillery and air duels along the Tientsin-Pukow-Nanking railway. The Japanese were on the defensive in both these regions.

The expected campaign inland from Tientsin, seaport of Shantung province, between Shanghai and Tientsin had not developed. The Japanese were expected to land troops here at any moment, however, and 1,000 Americans are in the city.

International Settlement and French police had officially listed 1,960 civilian dead, including 1,047 in the Great World amusement resort on the border of the settlement and the concession, 130 in Nanking road in the settlement near the Cathay and Palace hotels, 453 in the French concession, 100 on North Broadway in the settlement, and 230 at scattered points. Most of these were killed in nese aerial bombs killed more than 1,000 and wounded even more than that in the international areas on Saturday. Neither side admitted many dead.

Fifth Day of Battle. This was the fifth day of this strange battle of Shanghai, which shifted from the struggle for an economic grip on the northern provinces and dealt successive blows to Shanghai because the Japanese filled the city with warships and bluejackets and the Chinese army sent troops swarming in—contrary to the truce of 1932. In that year, some 12,000 fell in Sino-Japanese warfare here.

Today and last night, facing both ways from the Whangpoo, Japanese warships afloat and marines ashore locked in desperate combat with evergrowing Chinese armies crashing at their lines from north and south, planes flew and fought en masse.

Bombs Rocked Shanghai. Shanghai rocked to explosions, some of 'quake-like force. Night skies were brilliant as both sides sought to light the grim combat below. Ghastly starshells flared over a bitter land battle north of international Shanghai. Searchlights from Japan's powerful naval forces on the river picked out objectives for the big guns that pounded Chinese ashore throughout the night. Tracer bullets streaked across the clouds.

This beautiful and awful spectacle stretched along a front of some 30 miles, from the Yangtze to the north to well south of this war-awed city of 3,500,000.

Battles raged on all sides of Shanghai's international areas, where the foreign communities awaited daylight to resume the evacuations begun yesterday.

All American women and children were under official orders to leave Shanghai, and the first group of refugees departed yesterday aboard the home-bound liner President Taft.

Shells rained across the Whangpoo as they were carried down the river. They tore holes in the decks of their tender, but none was hurt. Some had left so hastily they had no luggage.

Three hundred and thirty-seven American women and children departed for Woosung this morning, to board the President Jefferson for Manila.

As the tender carrying them turned up the Whangpoo river for the ten-mile trip, Japanese opened a furious barrage a half-mile away, shooting at unidentified planes hovering above.

The American refugees covered within the tender, while crowds along the shore watched in fear.

More than 1,000 more refugees are to leave by the end of the week.

Mothers First. Expectant mothers and women with small children were given preference in the evacuation orders issued by Consul-General Clarence E. Gauss. Next came women and elderly men, with consideration given men traveling with their families.

Reinforcements of United States bluejackets and marines from the cruiser Augusta had raised the American forces ashore in Shanghai, covering the evacuation and protecting the foreign areas—to 1,150.

Under orders of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, the destroyers Edsall and Parrott were speeding here from their summer base at Chefoo, on the Shantung coast.

Evacuate Nanking. All American women and children were being evacuated from China's capital, Nanking, to Hankow, 450 miles up the Yangtze. Twenty-five of the 63 women and children in Nanking already were on a cargo boat steaming up the stream. Forty men were to stay. British authorities arranged to begin evacuating more than 2,000 women and children from Shanghai today on the Hong Kong-bound liner Rajputana. Other foreign authorities made similar arrangements to send their nationals out of the war zone.

The night battle raged most fiercely on both sides of the Whangpoo just below the point where it turns sharply toward the sea and forms the busiest part of Shanghai harbor.

To the north, on the fringes of Hongkew, the Japanese-dominated section of the International Settlement, Japanese marines faced waves of Chinese infantry driving at the Japanese naval headquarters and battery emplacements in near-by Hongkew park, key point of the Japanese shore positions.

Claim Building Captured. The Chinese asserted their forces, driving across the Shanghai-Woosung railway, had taken the fortress-like headquarters and pushed on into the park, but Japanese ridiculed the claim and there was no independent confirmation.

Star shells flared almost without cessation over this battle, into which the Japanese apparently had to fling most of their forces ashore.

Across the river, in Pootung, thickly built industrial areas, some 30,000 or 40,000 Chinese soldiers took battle positions. From these they tried to blast the Japanese navy from the Whangpoo with artillery and machine guns.

From the roof of the Telegraph building, at the corner of Shanghai's Juius Bund and Avenue Edward VII, at least ten miles from the battlefield, this correspondent watched the battle, a brilliantly staged panorama.

Fire Point Blank. Japanese destroyers moved in toward the Pootung shore to exchange gunfire almost point blank with the Chinese batteries. Even the Japanese flagship, the cruiser Idzumo, moved from her long-held position off the international settlement to join in the bombardment of Pootung.

Tons of metal were hurled into the Chinese positions, picked out by the tracer bullets and the whizzing searchlights of the Japanese warships. But the blasting seemed to give the Japanese little advantage, for the Chinese kept on pouring steady machine-gun

Repercussions of Far East War Felt in Capitals All Over World

Tokyo Bonds Drop $20 to $50 in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A tumble in Japanese loans in Wall Street today echoed the Far Eastern clash of arms.

On heels of a decline in Chinese and Japanese issues in London, a wave of selling broke the resistance of the Japanese government, the city of Tokyo and Japanese utility companies. Losses ranged from around $20 to nearly $50 per $1,000 face value of the bonds.

While selling increased following the week-end news from Shanghai and Tokyo, dealers said the decline was attributable more to lack of effective support than any deluge of offers. Reports Japan may extend its controls over industry and finance appeared to have influenced the selling.

Meanwhile, American corporations with interests in China scanned the news anxiously.

Apparently in sympathy with the fall in Japanese loans, bonds of American & Foreign Power Company declined on the stock exchange, although officials were notified no damage had been done to the property of its subsidiary, the $45,000,000 Shanghai Power Company, operating in the International Settlement.

American & Foreign Power owns about 80 per cent of the company's common stock, in addition to a large block of the preferred.

Chinese Arms Buy In Austria Hinted.

VIENNA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Authoritative sources expressed belief tonight that Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese foreign minister, may have negotiated arms purchases from Austria in a long conversation with Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg.

Schuschnigg and Dr. Kung met today at Salzburg at the chancellor's invitation but issued no statement of their discussions.

Reports apparently were groundless that Dr. Kung, who recently negotiated three loans for his embattled government, would meet Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, at Bad Gastein, Austria.

Chinese Protests To League Forecast.

GENEVA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A September Chinese appeal to the League of Nations council against Japanese aggression was forecast tonight in informed League quarters.

The council, with several important matters to come before it, will meet September 10 for its 98th session, three days before the annual League assembly meeting. Chinese diplomatic sources declared they had no instructions warranting them to prepare representations. They said they were in constant touch with Nanking, however, and expected a protest would be authorized.

Such a step, it was generally predicted, would be made despite Nanking's feeling of futility over League intervention since its protests against Japan's annexation of Manchuria in 1932.

Britain To Evacuate 2,700 From Shanghai.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The British foreign office disclosed today that 2,700 Britons—mostly women and children—will be removed from Shanghai to Hong Kong, crown colony, by the end of this week.

(Hong Kong, direct dispatches said, was making hasty preparations to receive a large number of refugees from the aerial fighting between Chinese and Japanese at Shanghai.)

(Committees were organized to provide housing and food for the first arrivals expected within a fire at the warships and into the Japanese shore position on the north bank.

Planes Aid Artillery. Japanese airplanes had flown most of Monday over Pootung, plotting Chinese positions to aid the warships' big guns.

Far down the Whangpoo, the Japanese cruisers and destroyers fired at long range into Chinese-held parts of Shanghai, Chapei to the north and Nantao and Lung-hwa to the south. Shells thrown at the latter objectives twice crossed the serpentine Whangpoo.

The shifting of the Idzumo, flagship of the Japanese commander of all forces now at Shanghai, Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, was welcomed by foreign authorities, who had tried repeatedly to get her to move. They told the Japanese commander that his ship's position off the Japanese consulate-general, within a few hundred yards of downtown Shanghai, intensified the peril of the foreign communities.

They held that the Idzumo had been the chief target of the Chinese bombing planes winging over the city since Saturday, including those which dropped bombs into the international areas.

Hundreds of casualties in the international areas have been due to fragments of shells with which Japanese anti-aircraft guns were searching the skies for the raiding Chinese.

Offers Assurance. Last night Mayor O. K. Yui, of the Chinese city of Shanghai, told the foreign consuls, "If the Idzumo ceases to use 'the settlement as a base for military operations against the Chinese and moves away, I am willing to give the same assurance as the Japanese.'" He referred to a Japanese undertaking not to permit their bombing planes to fly over that part of the international settlement south of Sochow creek. The

CHIANG PROMOTES BATTLING AIRMEN

NANKING, Aug. 16.—(UP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight gave all Chinese fliers who participated in the air battles over Nanking and Hangchow a promotion and a raise in pay.

The order, citing the "heroic" defense of the Chinese fliers who reportedly shot down eight Japanese planes during the skirmish, raised each aviator one peg above his former rank.

General Chow Ting-fang, leader of the squadron, received a bonus of 20,000 yuan ($6,000).

few days. Hospitals and hotel ballrooms were taken over as dormitories for women and children. A heavy influx of Chinese from Japan and Formosa complicated the problem.)

The British government kept in close contact with the United States and France over the Chinese situation through consultations here, in Washington and in Paris.

Shanghai-Hong Kong Airmail Suspended.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—W. H. Willoughby, chief of the air mail service here, announced suspension today of air mail between Shanghai and Hong Kong. He said war conditions were responsible. Willoughby stated trans-Pacific clippers would continue to fly to Macao, across the straits from Hong Kong.

Lutheran Ministers Gather at Tsingtao.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Paul Kohler, of the Lutheran Board of Foreign Missions, said today that Lutheran missionaries in China were gathering in Tsingtao as a "refuge city."

A number of them are already there, Dr. Kohler said, and five more are on their way from other cities. The board has one missionary in Shanghai, but they have not been able to reach him with instructions.

Dr. Kohler said the group in Tsingtao report there is no danger there at present. The missionaries are forming a common "missionary treasury" so that all can be equipped with money if they are forced to leave.

Note in Own Blood Asks for Army Service.

TOKYO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Hiro-michi Yamagata, 73-year-old patriot, is literally bleeding to go to war on the Chinese-Japanese front. But he won't.

He sent to the war office a petition, signed in his own blood, asking the government to let him serve in any capacity, preferably as a regular soldier.

The war office sent its regrets, explaining that "unfortunately the Japanese military system does not provide for volunteer enlistments."

Manila Prepares For 3,600 Refugees.

MANILA, (Tuesday) Aug. 17.—(UP)—Manila prepared today to receive 3,600 American refugees fleeing from war-torn Shanghai.

Simultaneously the United States Thirty-first infantry was understood to have been ordered to stand by for transport to Shanghai to aid in protecting American interests there.

Governor General Paul V. McNutt issued a proclamation calling on the people and the United States military authorities to aid in housing and caring for the impending stream of refugees.

Liner Sails Today. The Dollar Line steamer Pres-

Japanese now hold the settlement areas north of the creek.

Foreign authorities therefore hoped the shifting of the Idzumo was permanent.

Large fires were seen blazing in Pootung. Big oil storage plants of the American Standard-Vacuum and Texas companies are situated there, but how they fared is not known.

Chiang Issues Warning. In Nanking Monday night the head of the Chinese government, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, summoned to his headquarters Nelson T. Johnson, the American ambassador, and the British, French, Italian and German ambassadors to tell them:

"We do not intend to attack anyone, but we are determined to defend our territory at all costs."

The generalissimo, who has sent his air forces and some of his finest divisions against the Japanese at Shanghai, assured the ambassadors the Chinese would do their utmost to safeguard foreign lives and property in Shanghai.

U. S. Britain Protest. General Chiang's assurances were given after the American and British embassies had delivered oral and written protests against Saturday's bombings by Chinese planes of the International Settlement and French concession in Shanghai. The Chinese said these were accidental, due to Japanese anti-aircraft fire wounding the Chinese pilots and damaging the planes' bomb racks.

Chinese officers in Nanking declaring their air forces had gained the upper hand in three days' fierce aerial warfare at Shanghai and for hundreds of miles into the hinterland, which Japanese fliers have penetrated seeking to destroy Chinese bases.

The Chinese said they had had 27 planes in action, of which "only a few" failed to return. An official dent Hoover, one of the newest and finest passenger liners on the Pacific, sails at 10 a. m. for Shanghai to embark American women and children. She carries a company of marines from the Cavite naval base to reinforce 1,050 marines now on duty in the Chinese city. She carries no cargo and will race to Shanghai at full speed without her usual stop at Hong Kong.

Transport of additional American soldiers and marines to Shanghai was hampered by lack of transport.

This morning's newspaper published a front page appeal to readers to co-operate with a refugee committee arranging to care for the Americans from Shanghai.

A committee of army officers and civilians leased the Big Pine hotel at Bagui, the capital's summer resort high in the mountains, as a refugee camp.

300 American Refugees. Army officers said the Dollar Liner President Jefferson left Shanghai today with more than 300 American refugees. She should make this port within 60 hours.

The Dollar Liner President Taft, which sailed from Shanghai Monday, was ordered to cancel her voyage to San Francisco and return to Shanghai to pick up refugees which will be brought to Manila.

The President Hoover is carrying doctors and medical supplies to Shanghai where a disease epidemic is feared.

Two French Liners Speeding Up Rescue.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The foreign ministry announced tonight that the French liners Aramis and Sphinx would evacuate French citizens from embattled Shanghai under protection of the French far eastern squadron.

Details of the evacuation of some 1,000 French nationals were left to discretion of French authorities at Shanghai. France also assumed responsibility for removing Swiss, Belgian and Czechoslovakian citizens from the Shanghai battle zone.

A battalion of colonial infantry was ordered to proceed from French Indo-China to reinforce the guard of the Shanghai French concession, which consists largely of Annamite troops from Indo-China.

The foreign office announced that Paul Emile Naggar, French ambassador to China, had protested to the Nanking government against the bombing of the French concession by Chinese airplanes Saturday. Nearly 1,000, most of them Chinese, were killed in the French quarter. Chinese said the bombing was accidental.

Aid to Methodists Promised by Hull. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull wired Dr. W. G. Cram, general secretary of the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, tonight advising him "all possible assistance being extended missionaries" in the Chinese war zone.

The telegram, Dr. Cram said, was in reply to one he sent Hull offering co-operation of the missionaries in Shanghai.

Dr. Cram said Methodist missionaries have not been ordered out of Shanghai.

"Of course, we have warned them," he said, "but we have given no specific orders." Whether they leave the war-torn area is up to them and the consular officers, he added.

Hull's telegram to the mission board said:

"Telegram sent consul Shanghai requesting that, whereabouts and safety missionaries. All possible assistance being extended missionaries who have been advised of the situations by consulate."

Dr. Cram said there were about 20 Methodist missionaries in Shanghai.

tabulation admitted the loss of seven planes, but said 21 Japanese aircraft had been shot down.

72 Planes Reported Lost. (In Tokyo the navy ministry announced 72 Chinese planes had been shot down or destroyed on the ground by Japanese raiders.)

Throughout Monday the opposing air forces ranged over the far-flung battlefield, striking at hostile landing areas. In the Chinese zone were reported bombing the Japanese along the south bank of the Yangtze some 12 miles north of here.

They were understood to be trying to prevent landings of Japanese troops there from transports newly arrived from Japan, said to have brought the vanguard of at least two army divisions.

Bomb Infantry. Late in the afternoon four big Japanese bombers wheeled slowly and methodically over the Chinese army in Pootung bombing without aerial resistance. Thousands watched from buildings on Shanghai's shorefront. The big Japanese planes would loose their projectiles, then circle and bank gracefully over the Shanghai bund

WOMAN STABBED, ANOTHER GIVES UP

'She Deserved It,' Shouts Fare at Taxi Driver, on Way to Police.

"She deserved it!" Mrs. Effie Hamilton, 40, last night admitted she had stabbed Mrs. Jesse Mae Reynolds, 22, of 352 1-2 Central avenue.

"I've killed a woman," Mrs. Hamilton yelled to a taxi driver, G. F. Foster, of 577 Washington street.

He had picked her up at Washington street and Trinity avenue and drove her to the police station.

A few hours before, Mrs. Reynolds, her neck, arms and legs deeply gashed, was found on the Honor Farm road by Mace Owens, of Panthersville. Owens hurried her to a hospital.

She told a story of another man to police. They said she told them a woman had come up, slashed her and had put a knife to the man's throat, and forced him to drive away. The Reynolds woman lay in the road, where she was found.

Later, Detectives H. C. Newton and J. A. Preston questioned Mrs. Hamilton. They called DeKalb police, as the slashing took place just over the Fulton line.

OFFICIALS IN LONDON FEAR GENERAL FIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(UP)—Officials tonight said the British government feels there is little prospect of averting a general war in the Far East.

Ministers stood by at Whitehall throughout the day, discussing the Sino-Japanese situation. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was at Fawley, Hampshire, and conferred by telephone with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain at Sutherlandshire and with the foreign office.

Eden may interrupt his vacation and return to London, but there has been no indication that Chamberlain will call an emergency cabinet meeting.

before returning to their work of destruction.

An American gunboat, the Sacramento, lay in the river between Shanghai and the Japanese planes' objectives in Pootung. Near by was the French Cruiser Lamotte Picquet, which threw out a smoke screen to hide herself and the American boat.

From Manila came reports that a company of American marines was under orders to leave there today aboard the big Dollar Liner President Hoover to speed to Shanghai. The Hoover was expected to take away some 1,000 American refugees. The Red Cross at Manila was preparing to care for Americans driven from their Shanghai homes.

To Try Back Assault. Indications were the battle for Shanghai would increase in extent and ferocity. Large units of the Japanese army were known to be approaching the Shanghai battle area and it was believed almost certain they would attempt a landing on the Yangtze shore at Luho or some other point north of this city, as they did in 1932 to turn the flank of the Chinese positions they had failed to break by frontal attack.

But the Chinese also remembered the lessons of 1932. Wherever possible they were seizing the offensive, striking in desperate attempts to drive the invader into the sea before he established his foothold on Chinese soil.

Augusta Moves Away. The United States cruiser Augusta, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, finding herself in the zone of fire on the Whangpoo, shifted downstream from her position about three miles below the city.

Chinese authorities expressed doubts as to the advisability of evacuating foreign residents owing to the bitter fighting along the Whangpoo. However, both Japanese and Chinese commands have been informed of the evacuation plans and have given evidence they intend to show consideration for the safety of the refugees.

350 Booked to Leave. Three hundred fifty American women and children have been booked to leave here on the liner President Jefferson Wednesday.

Ten foreign banks, which yesterday closed in view of the perils hanging over downtown Shanghai, announced they would reopen today in temporary quarters in the western

By JAMES A. MILLS.
ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT McKINLEY, Between Kobe and Shanghai, Aug. 16.—(P)—I have left a Japan which is preparing for war in China grimly and on a huge scale but without popular enthusiasm.

Japan soon will have 100,000 fighting men in China, but the masses at home who ultimately must pay for it all do not like the prospect. Under the stimulus of official propaganda, however, the nation has accepted the conflict reluctantly as a bad job from which there is no backing down.

Already the people are restless under heavy taxation and the high cost of living, but still they deck their homes with rising sun flags and throng to the railway stations to chant "Ranzai!" as the troop trains roll out with their loads of China-bound transports.

The President McKinley, crossing the China sea en route to the Shanghai battle zone, has passed transport carrying 20,000 troops to augment the army and navy forces already fighting in China, which I estimate at 80,000 men.

More thousands are to follow, for I have seen, in the China sea and the narrow reaches of Japan's bountiful inland sea, columns of Japanese transports returning home from China ports to embark new contingents.

Crossing Japan from Tokyo to Kobe I found all railway stations decorated with flags, banners and lanterns. At many there were wartime scenes as soldiers were cheered on their way to the China fronts.

I passed numerous military trains loaded with artillery, motor trucks, tanks, armored motorcycles, artillery, all converging on the west Japan and inland seaports of embarkation. Many of those ports are closed to all but military activity.

Six thousand horses have been sent from Kobe.

On Wartime Footing.
The government has not yet ordered general mobilization, but the empire actually is on a wartime footing. In Japan it is possible to call scores of thousands of reserves to the colors without formal mobilization and without public announcement.

The Japanese people, who have access to no accounts of the conflict except what their government wants them to read, mostly believe their cause against the Chinese is righteous, that they have been provoked into war. Still they do not want the additional burdens of war.

Cabinet Stunned.

There are indications the cabinet has been shocked by the extent and ferocity the struggle has assumed. The Shanghai slaughter taught the ministers by surprise.
The killing of Japanese civilians and soldiers at Tungchow brought the stunning realization that Chinese cannot be enlisted under Japan's banner to fight Chinese.

Chinese enrolled as Peace Preservation troops by the Japanese-controlled east Hoph regime turned on their employers at Tung-chow, east of Peiping.
This has caused grave doubts as to the loyalty of the Manchukuo army, consisting of some 100,000 subjects of the Japanese master-rulers who racially are Chinese, allied by blood, tongue and culture with the nation with which Japan is at undeclared war.

The Manchukuo troops have Japanese training and a degree of loyalty to their Japanese masters would be a terrible development.
There have been serious train wrecks and other acts of violence and terrorism against the Japanese regime in Manchukuo, news of which has been suppressed rigorously.

Too Poor to Fight.
Foreign economic experts say Japan's finances will not stand more than a three-months' war because the government's only real, tangible funds consist of the equivalent of about $400,000,000 in gold. It must rely on the capacity and willingness of the people to pay more taxes and the Major Developments in War Are Told in Brief Paragraphs

SHANGHAI: Japanese flagship attacked by Chinese "suicide destroyer" which was sunk; all Americans except military and officials leaving city as are British and other foreigners; American women and children ordered out; death toll passes 3,500; new battle for control of Yangtze-Whangpoo river delta; more than 150,000 men engaged; food and milk shortage growing serious and an epidemic appears certain; battles rage on all fronts; American refugees depart under shellfire; American, French and British reinforcements ordered to city.

WASHINGTON: President Roosevelt confers with Secretary of State, army and navy chiefs and Far East experts.

TOKYO: Japan orders its embassy closed in China, all its consuls withdrawn, but it is not known if this means breaking of diplomatic relations; government summons financiers and parliament to insure war funds; believed two full army divisions have reached Shanghai; emperor in constant touch with situation; newspapers demand China be "punished."

NANKING: Japanese planes bomb city again, chief objectives being air fields; Chiang Kai-shek tells foreign ambassadors China wants to hurt no one, but must defend own soil; American women and children begin withdrawal to Hankow; Chiang Kai-shek promotes and raises pay of Chinese pilots who battled Nipponese planes.

PEIPING: Chinese and Japanese armies locked in battle in heights overlooking Nankow Pass, with Chinese holding foot at bay; 1,000 Japanese and 500 Chinese reported killed in fighting at pass.

TIENSIN: North China battlefronts unchanged; Japanese summon 2,000 reinforcements to aid in attack along Peiping-Suiyuan railway at Nankow pass.

ON LINER BETWEEN JAPAN AND SHANGHAI: Correspondent, freed from Japanese censorship, says China war unpopular in Japan; see transports carrying 20,000 more troops to battlefronts.

PARIS: France orders nationals to quit Shanghai, protests to China against bombings, orders more troops to beleaguered city.

GENEVA: League council expects Chinese protests against Japanese aggressions.

MANILA: Manila preparing to care for 3,600 refugees; Marines and regular army regiment ordered to Shanghai; liners depart for refugees as others head toward city loaded to capacity with Americans from Shanghai.

NEW YORK: Tokyo bonds drop in Wall Street.

VIENNA: China reported buying arms in Austria.

HONG KONG: This city preparing to care for British refugees from Shanghai.

banks and men of wealth to buy more government bonds.
Already half a billion yen (about $145,000,000) has been appropriated for the China war and parliament probably will be convoked again next month to vote more hundreds of millions.

Many foreign businessmen expect a Japanese government debt moratorium soon, similar to that of post-war Germany. Already American and other foreign firms in Japan have great trouble in sending money out of the country.

What Has Japan to Lose or Gain? A.P. Expert Gives Explanation

Glenn Babb, a native of Columbia, Mo., who went to the orient 16 years ago from the University of Missouri and served as chief of bureau for the Associated Press in both Japan and China, gives the answers to many of the questions Americans at home are asking about the conflict at Shanghai.
Babb recently returned to New York where, as cable editor, he helps co-ordinate the far-flung news coverage of the Associated Press staff in the Far Eastern trouble zones.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(P)— Sitting amid the clatter of incoming cable machines at the Associated Press headquarters in New York tonight, Glenn Babb, far eastern expert and long-time resident of Japan and China, tonight gave an interview illuminating the behind the scenes forces in the Sino-Japanese conflict at Shanghai.

Questions and answers follow:

Q. What has Japan to gain or lose at Shanghai?

A. If Japan drives the Chinese army from Shanghai and places that city under her control she will have seized the outlet to the great Yangtze valley, which contains some 200,000,000 Chinese and the greater part of the wealth of the country. It must be remembered, however, that she did drive the Chinese away in 1932, but did not fasten her control on Shanghai, a move which would immediately bring her face to face with interests of nearly all the great western powers. Beyond the obvious one of establishing her military supremacy it remains to be seen what her objectives are in the present campaign. One of the issues at stake undoubtedly is that of military prestige, or the "face" which is all important in the life of the orient.

HERE BLUNDERING, OR DELIBERATE PLAN?

Q. Why has Japan undertaken such a widespread movement in China with such a small army?

A. Persons of long residence in the orient are divided as to whether the Japanese are proceeding in China along the lines of a long term, carefully detailed plan of conquest, such as the Chinese assert was outlined in the memorial of the late Baron Giichi Tanaka, premier 1927-29.
The Japanese brand the memorial as pure fabrication. Some authorities believe that far from following such a schedule of conquest the Japanese simply blunder from one phase of their advance to the next, never quite prepared for the next step and frequently involved in adventures like the 1932 Shanghai battle, from which there is no tangible gain.

It seems to me that this is the case this time. Admittedly there are many Japanese, chiefly the military men, who believe their destiny is to dominate all of eastern Asia and who work incessantly to that end. It has never been established, however, that such a policy has been adopted by the imperial government.
It would appear that the empire building activities of Japan are much like those which built other great empires of the past.
There are tremendous forces within Japan—economic and social—which are driving her relentlessly toward expansion.
These bring her into constant conflict with her neighbor. It is only nature that the pressure breaks out where the resistance is weakest. Thus far this has been China.

WHERE IS FAMOUS 19TH ROUTE ARMY?

Q. What has become of the Nineteenth route army which de- fended Shanghai in 1932?

A. The Nineteenth route army was involved in the uprising at Fukien in 1933 and after that uprising failed was shifted to far southern Kwangtung and practically dispersed. Its commander general, Taiting-kai, had to go into exile, but recently was reported back in China to offer his services to fight Japan.

Q. How does the present fight compare with 1932?

A. In the danger to foreign interests this battle is incomparably more dangerous than the one in 1932, although today it is only five days old and the other lasted five weeks. There is every indication it will cover a much wider territory, call in much larger forces on both sides, and result in much greater loss of life. Estimates of loss of life in Shanghai in 1932 were about 12,000.
The Chinese forces today engaged are considerably larger, far better trained and equipped than those who made the heroic stand north of Shanghai in 1932. The Japanese forces at present are smaller than those fighting at the height of the 1932 battle, but there is every indication that the army units speeding from Japan will soon make the Japanese a much more formidable force than they were five years ago.

Q. Are regular Chinese army troops fighting at Shanghai?

A. There seems little doubt that some of Chiang Kai-shek's own German-trained divisions such as the 87th and 88th, are fighting at Shanghai today. This indicates that Chiang himself is involved in the war against Japan to a much greater degree than he was in 1932. At that time he let the burden of resistance fall on the 19th route army, which came from Canton and happened to be in the Shanghai area primarily to increase the political strength and insure the safety of prominent Cantonese politicians who were then struggling with Chiang Kai-shek for control of the Nanking government. It was only late in the conflict that he sent some of his own units into the fight.
His enemies suggested this was as much to stifle charges of being pro-Japanese as to help the Cantonese warriors, whose advent in the Shanghai area it was known Chiang did not welcome.

ENEMY IS NATURAL TO ORIENTAL FIGHTERS

Q. Are Chinese and Japanese men in the street natural enemies?

A. The antipathy between the two people naturally has been intensified by government propaganda and nationalistic press in recent years, but the hatred of the Japanese and Chinese is deep seated and of long standing. The Chinese have always considered the Japanese their inferior in civilization and culture. The Janese, compelled to admit that they are greatly indebted to China for their written language, culture and much of their civilization, have had to fall back on their military prowess to prove their superiority.

Racially and temperamentally the Chinese and Japanese have almost nothing in common. The Chinese are intense individualists and passive, peace-loving people.
The Japanese treasure the warlike traditions of their race, lend themselves to regimentation and organization for war-like effort.
Their patriotism is almost fanatical; there is no greater glory than to die for the emperor on the field of battle.

When two such people meet and the Pacific one has great wealth of territory and resources, and the martial one, cooped up in small islands, lacks these things, conflict is inevitable.

Crackers Seek To Take Baron Series in Final Here Tonight

The Scotch Burrs Were So Thick People Stepped on Them

"Ouch!" shouted a customer who had come in to buy a couple of tennis balls. "Ouch!" He grabbed one foot and went hopping around the store.

"Dinna ye worry," said Jimmy Livingstone, the Ingleside professional, "tis some of the burrs from the old country."

There was Jimmy himself, the pride of old North Berwick. And there was Mrs. George Livingstone, wife of the veteran professional at the Belle Meade Country Club in Nashville, and Mrs. George Bell, who is visiting here from Shotts, England. She is Mrs. George Livingstone's sister.

Mrs. Bell, on her first visit to America, is having a grand time but is eager to get back to Scotland. The Livingstones are all golfers. There is Jimmy, one of the greatest people on earth, at Ingleside. And at Nashville, Tenn.-O-See, is George. He has been there since the floods receded from the ark. Up at Clarksville, also in Tennessee, is Henry Livingstone. He has been there for almost two decades.

After that they begin to repeat. There is Henry Livingstone, the younger, up at Gainesville's Country Club. And out at Brookhaven, of course, is Willie.

The Livingstones are all graaand people to know. There are no bad Scotch, anyhow.

Mrs. Bell, though, stayed out of golf. Her husband doesn't even play golf. He is interested in football—the English games that attract 150,000 and thereabouts.

Just before he left the store, Jimmy Livingstone asked if we had heard of the terrible accident in Glasgow. It seems a taxicab ran into a stone wall and 14 Scots were hurt. Two other occupants of the cab escaped without injury.

THAT FARR-LOUIS FIGHT.

Being a very diligent person, I have been peering at all the pictures sent out which bear a likeness of this young man, Tommy Farr, who is to be in there with Joe Louis on the night of August 26.

Tommy Farr is from Wales, and as is known to one and all, Wales is English. The Irish are Irish and the Scotch are Scots, but the Welsh are English.

This statement may be disputed but nevertheless it's true. The people of Wales have never stood back and taken a swing at the old mother country as have Scotland and Ireland. Which explains why they have come to be regarded as English.

All the English heavyweights have been horizontal heavyweights. They have had more canvas on their backs than a canvas-back duck. Their favorite position is the horizontal and never the perpendicular.

In looking at Tommy Farr's pictures, I have noted that his ears are scrambled. They do not look so much like cauliflower ears. They resemble an automobile fender which has been crumpled in a collision.

Also, in some of the closeups, I see there are scars on Tommy Farr's face. All of this means that people have been hitting him. He must be able to soak up a punch. But the fact the boys have been hitting him with great ease means that he can be hit again.

There has been a lot of criticism of Joe Louis' fighting style. But not yet has anyone come around to say he couldn't punch.

THE PASTOR MYSTERY.

The theme could work on to a successful conclusion almost immediately were it not for the Pastor fight in the Louis book. Pastor ran away and, true to the old axiom, lived to fight again another day. It is true, of course, he hasn't had that day. But still, he stayed in there all the way with Louis.

Farr is a mystery. His record is poor. He won a decision over Tommy Loughran but Tommy Loughran was old and flat-footed, as fighters go. All his other victories have been nothing to make any noise in ring circles.

The most sensible opinion to have is that Joe Louis will belt Farr out of there. Farr can be hit. Louis can do the hitting. He has demonstrated that.

Following the old rule about putting two and two together, it may be seen that Louis will hit Farr. Whether Farr can soak up the punches remains to be seen.

Everything would be just dandy if it were not for that Pastor fight. Pastor can be hit. And a smart fighter could have cornered him and got him out of there. Louis didn't. Well, I wouldn't know.

THOSE CRACKERS.

Meanwhile, those Crackers of ours will have at the Barons tonight. It's the final game of the series. The people around our town are quite stirred up after the two victories of Sunday. There were almost 11,000 people there to see the club win two games.

The race has tightened up in that first division. If the Crackers can keep going they will have a most excellent chance to move on up to third place. Second place is not an impossibility. The Vols are staggering. All of which means the Shaughnessy play-off should be the most exciting one in its three years of Southern association history.

EIGHTY ENTRIES LISTED IN MEET FOR CITY TITLE

Largest Field in Recent Years Expected; Record May Be Set.

By ROY WHITE. With more than 80 entries already recorded, Atlanta's annual amateur golf tournament which begins Wednesday on the No. 1 East Lake course promises to be the largest in recent years, and possibly a new record will be set.

There were some 50-odd players on the course Monday in the only preliminary round before the qualifying Wednesday, but no one gave par a beating, nor even came close to par figures.

In fact, only a couple of scores below 78 were turned in and the players were not very proud of those, and did not turn in the cards nor give any names. Qualifying will open at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and those who request starting times will be given preferences.

Players may select their own partners, but they must not be members of the same club.

A lively battle for city honors is in prospect, with Tommy Barnes, the 1936 champion, in Portland, practicing for the National Amateur next week.

Also there will be a real scrap for team honors and every club in the city, including some of the municipal courses, is sending its strongest four players after the big cup and individual team prizes.

The tourney is being sponsored by the Atlanta Golf Association, and George and Harold Sargent, the East Lake professionals, will assist Keith Conway, the president, and other officers of the association in promoting the tourney.

Practice will continue today. Because of the large entry list, players are asked to phone today for starting times.

Today's PROBABLE PITCHERS

NATIONAL LEAGUE. Chicago at Pittsburgh—French or Bryant vs. Brandt or Lucas. St. Louis at Cincinnati (Night Game)—Welland vs. Schott. New York at Boston—Schumacher vs. Fette or Bush. Philadelphia at Brooklyn—Passeau or Mulcahy vs. Hoyt.

AMERICAN LEAGUE. Washington at New York—Appleton and Deshong vs. Pearson and Andrews. Boston at Philadelphia—Maroon or Wilson vs. Ross. Detroit at Chicago—Bridges vs. Whitehead or Hogsett. Cleveland at St. Louis—Allen vs. Hildebrand or Hogsett.

Paul Dean Decides To Quit for Season

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Paul Dean, star-armed Cardinals pitcher, called it a season today and prepared to retire voluntarily for the remainder of the major league schedule. The Cardinals' office announced his decision unexpectedly last night as he and his brother, Dizzy, were supposedly leaving for an exhibition game in Charleston, W. Va. Diz accompanied the team. Paul retired voluntarily in August last season after hurting his shoulder in mid-June, but he had attempted to work into pitching shape this year. Recently he declined to go to Houston, Texas league cardinal farm, and last week pitched two innings in an exhibition contest in Belleville, Ill., for the Cardinals.

Three Main Bouts Billed at Avondale

A triple main go is offered Avondale mat fans Thursday night when a well-rounded card will be presented by Matchmaker Nat Jones.

Bill Jeffries, Pampas bull, tackles Ted Bell, East Lynn grappler, in the feature, no-time-limit match. This bout will be in the nature of a grudge affair, the winner to take all. Jeffries was disqualified in a match last week and immediately challenged Bell to a return engagement, saying that he would not only beat the East Lynn grappler in straight falls, but that he would whip the referee, Mauldin, for good measure. The Pampas bull took this attitude against Mauldin after the latter had disqualified him last week.

Mike Cassidy, Omaha Terror, and one of the toughest grapplers in the wrestling game, meets Jack Layden, a grappler who can hold his own with the best of them. Horace Coulter, a newcomer to local mats, meets Baron Carl Von Hoffman, ace German grappler, in another main bout.

McLennan Beaten In Brookline Meett

MANCHESTER, Mass., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Kay Winthrop Virginia Rice Johnson, both of Boston, led a parade of favorites through first-round play at the Essex County Club's annual women's invitation tennis tournament today but last-minute withdrawals robbed the affair of some of its strongest players. Evangeline McLennan, of Atlanta, after winning the first set, 6-3, was eliminated in a sensational rally by Mrs. Carlton Mabley Jr., of Brookline, Mass. The scores of the two final sets were 3-6, 3-5.

Two Great Jumpers Matched for Special Race August 25

Forrest (Spec) Towns (on the right), Georgia's world champion hurdler, looks over Red Wing, crack cavalry jumper at Fort Oglethorpe. A proposed race between Red Wing and Towns is scheduled for August 25 as a feature of a field day at the camp. Sergeant William T. Akers is holding Red Wing. Towns is a C. M. T. C. trainee at Fort Oglethorpe and is anxious to lead the horse over the 120-yard high hurdles.

TOWNS AGREES TO RACE HORSE

Champion Hurdler Matched With Red Wing at Camp.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Casting about for more worlds to conquer with his steel-spring legs, Forrest "Spec" Towns, Olympic hurdler champion, has challenged Red Wing, cavalry horse, to a race over the 120-yard high hurdles. The race, pending official approval, is set tentatively for August 25 as the feature of a field day at Fort Oglethorpe's C. M. T. C. camp, of which Towns is a member.

Towns holds the world's record in the high hurdles at 14.1 seconds. Sergeant William Akers believes it would be a close race, a prize cavalry horse, can beat the Georgia star jumper.

"She might have to be held back a bit because of the short distance between the hurdles (ten yards), but Towns would have to travel plenty fast to beat her," said Akers.

"I believe I can beat any horse in the world" in the high hurdles, Towns declared. "In the first place, I will get the jump on him at the start and I doubt if the horse can hit his stride between the hurdles."

Stagg Celebrates 75th Birthday

STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, football's "grand old man," celebrated his 75th birthday today by jogging four blocks to the municipal tennis courts, and battling the ball around as a part of his conditioning program for the gridiron season. The veteran coach said he had never felt better. The mentor of the College of the Pacific will start his 47th campaign as a tutor of a football squad in September, and his fifth year as the Tiger coach.

Mailho's Ace Stops Durham and Leonard

Duffer's Hole-In-One Humiliates Mates In Piedmont Park Round.

By JACK TROY. Bobby Durham takes his golf seriously. He comes in after rounds and tells you about the birdies and the pars he has made and how straight and long he was hitting 'em down the middle.

Emil Mailho also takes quite a pride, as a duffer, in his game. He likes to recount the good shots and explain how he would have parred the course if so and so had been in his favor.

But yesterday when Durham, and Leonard finished their rounds, the Sphinx was a gabby old gabbler as compared with the two Cracker pitchers.

"What's a casual observer asked, 'no birdies today?'"

Durham and Leonard weren't talking, however, and the reason was very plain.

Emil Mailho, the ranker duffer of them all, fired a hole-in-one on the 205-yard No. 6 at Piedmont park, playing with—your guessed it—Durham and Leonard. Incidentally it was the 25th ace of the year and the third in three days.

Counting his ace, Mailho struggled in with an even 100, just 1 stroke higher than Leonard and only 10 strokes above Durham, who usually shoots in the low 80s.

Mailho, a southpaw, really did something to get his hole in one. He socked a long shot that landed just in front of the green and then bounced on into the cup.

And what was all the more embarrassing for his pitcher partners was that Durham and Leonard had gone into quite some detail not so very long ago explaining how a couple of shots they made just missed by about a foot or so of going in on the drive.

"What do you expect?" Mailho asked. "It takes an outfielder to show pitchers how to really pitch."

'I'm From Missouri,' Says Hugh Luby.

In the Cracker clubhouse the other day Alex Hooks pointed out that the Crackers virtually had an all-Texas infield, with Richards at third, Chatham on short and himself on first.

The good towns of Waxahatchie, Waco and Denton, of the wide open spaces, are well represented on the Cracker infield.

There was a short silence after Hooks' declaration when, from a corner, came another voice.

"I'm from Missouri," said Hugh Luby, the second baseman, "Sioux City, Missouri."

Newest Umpire Doing Good Work.

Doc Blackard, the newest addition to the Southern league umpiring staff, is doing a very creditable job.

Blackard, a Nashville man, graduated from the sandlots to the Kitty league and thence to the Southern. Claude Bond, who is breaking Blackard in, believes he will be one of the finest umpires the league has had in some time.

"I really enjoy working together with two such fine umpires as Blackard and George Grant," Bond said yesterday. "They're both hard-working, conscientious boys and are a credit to the league."

Bond, incidentally, is a real

CALLAWAY LOSES TO END NINE, 8-6

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 16.—Georgia's LaGrange Club made an auspicious start here tonight but a bad finish and lost its opening game of the national semi-pro baseball tourney to Enid, Okla., Escons, 8 to 6.

The Callaways had the game safely in the bag going into the ninth inning with a four-run lead. But the Georgians blew sky high. Wilson who had hurled fine ball up to the ninth got wild and Enid loaded the bases with two walks and a single with none away. They continued hitting off Swayze and Pritchard until six runs had come across with five singles damaging LaGrange's chances. LaGrange watched chances in the first, scoring but one run on three doubles and a single but made four in the fifth and looked like a sure winner from that time on until the last frame.

Moore's Home Run Wins for Warren

Virlyn Moore's home run in the 11th inning with Moody on base gave Warren a 4-to-3 victory over the Tubize nine, of Rome, Ga., on the Warren athletic field.

Wynne kept seven hits well scattered except in the third inning when the visitors scored two runs. He struck out 14 batters. Tubize scored one in the 11th, but Virlyn's homer broke the tie.

Burrows let Warren down with only eight hits. Tom Harper, of Tubize, led the hitting with four for four. Moore secured two of the eight hits for Warren.

Warren plays Dixie State at 4 o'clock this afternoon on Glenn field.

DUTCH LEONARD TO PITCH GAME AT 8:30 O'CLOCK

Atlanta To Have Two Off Days Before Road Trip.

By JACK TROY. Still within striking distance of both third and second positions in the Southern league race, the Crackers will conclude their series with Birmingham tonight and then observe a couple more days of rest before going to Memphis for a four-game series, opening Friday night.

The Crackers will play eight games on the road during the trip, finishing up away from home with both Memphis and Little Rock.

They return here on August 28 and will play Memphis, Knoxville and Chattanooga. The season's getting along. Only one road trip comes after that. There'll be four games in two days in New Orleans and then the club comes home to finish up with the league-leading Little Rock Travelers.

A second-place finish is still very possible for the Crackers. They're only three games behind Memphis, and they play the Chicks next. They're three and one-half games behind the Vols, with whom they have finished for the season.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, who apparently has returned to top form, will face the Barons tonight.

Manager Riggs Stephenson is almost sure to counter with Hugh Casey, the Buckhead boy who has scored the Barons' only victory of the series. Casey pitched the opener, beating Atlanta, 8 to 4.

And, since other Barons pitchers have failed, it's very likely that Casey will be on the mound. If not, George, a left-hander, is a strong possibility.

The Crackers can remain a second-place threat by winning tonight and making it three out of four for the series. It's ladies' night.

In the event they do take the series, the home stand will have been very profitable. The Crackers also took three out of four from New Orleans. Six out of eight is fine baseball wherever played.

It also provides a fine attraction that the schedule has worked out so Little Rock, the 1937 champions, will finish the season in Atlanta against the 1935-36 winners.

No-Hitter Hurdled By Goat Walker

JACKSONVILLE, Florida, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Goat Walker entered the South Atlantic league's Hall of Fame here tonight, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the leading Columbus team. The Tars won, 2 to 0.

Only two Red Birds got to first base. Garriot, first man up in the first inning, was safe when Sommer booted his grounder. Dobbins then hit into a double play. Garriot also drew a pass as first baseman in the seventh but the next three men were easy for Walker.

Walker struck out seven men and had only 27 official at bats charged against him.

KIM PETERSON, COURTS, DAVIS WIN MATCHES

Seeded Stars Have Little Trouble in First Round.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Fifty-five matches were disposed of in the first day's play in the Georgia state tennis tournament yesterday on the Tech courts, with all seeded stars advancing with little trouble.

Kim Peterson, of Nashville, present Tennessee champion, who is seeded first, had little trouble in advancing to the third round by trouncing Bud Morris, 6-0, 6-1.

Bill Moore, who, by the way, is a senior at Tech, having "made his rise" last term, advanced over Jim Harrington by default. Moore is ranked second in the state meet by virtue of his brilliant play in winning the recent city tourney.

Joe Davis, another Nashville star, ranked third, beat Frank Robinson, of Augusta, 6-1, 6-4. Davis is seeded first in the junior tourney.

Molon Courts, Atlanta star and rated fourth, eliminated Rea Tenney, 6-3, 6-3, while Campbell Gillespie, University of Miami ace and ranked fifth, whipped Damon McDaniel, 6-2, 6-4.

Bill Lufner, manager of the tourney, announced that the delayed men's doubles finals of the city meet will be played this afternoon on the Tech courts. Bill Moore-Bud Lindsay will play Campbell Gillespie-Russell Bobbitt for the championship.

MANGIN IS UPSET IN SECOND ROUND OF CASINO MEET

Parker, Riggs and Van Ryn Win Matches; 'Bitty' Idle.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 16.—(P) Fifth-seeded Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., veteran, lost a second-round match to the unranked Fumituru Nakano, of Japan, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 in today's opening of the 57th Newport Casino tennis tournament before a small but select gallery lured to these historic courts to watch Don Budge, champion of champions.

Frankie Parker, only member of the triumphant American Davis cup team who played today, had a bit of trouble with Ramsay Potts, of Memphis, Tenn., before he gained the second round with an 8-6, 6-1 victory.

Budge and his Davis cup doubles partner, Gene Mako, postponed their arrival for 24 hours. The fourth Davis cup player, Bryan (Bitty) Grant, was forced to mark time because of other absences.

ENGLISH STAR LOSES.
The foreign list suffered a single dent when Clarence M. Jones, of England, its No. 5, dropped a 9-7, 6-2 first-round to William T. Tilden III., of Philadelphia.

That rangy namesake—nephew of the great Big Bill, then moved against Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, and was overwhelmed, 6-2, 6-2.

Four other seeded domestic stars, including Bobby Riggs, great-old Calistonia sensation of the eastern turf season and last year's Casino winner, qualified for the third round. Riggs, whose only start was against Modesto Alouco, of Berkeley, Cal., in the second round, displayed little of his great form while out-guessing his opponent for a 6-4, 6-5 victory.

John Van Ryn, of Austin, Texas, seeded sixth, got off slowly against Marty Suxby, of Miami, but he wound up with a 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory and then gained the third round.

John McDermid, of Princeton, N. J., and Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, the seventh and last seeded stars, drew first-round byes and then moved into the third round without opposition.

McDermid eliminated David O'Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, 6-4, 6-0, and Harris accounted for James W. Gerard, of New York, 6-3, 6-3.

All of America's first ten were in the brief international field of 93 and the last member of that select group, Art Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., was the first-round victim of Norman Bickell, of Chicago, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Favorites Advance In Decatur Play.
Seeded players, with the exception of top-ranked Pierre Howard, who did not play, survived their first-round matches in the annual Decatur tennis tournament which began Saturday.

Plott Brice, No. 2, had little trouble in eliminating Bill Albee, 6-2, 6-1. Third-ranked Paul Gleason advanced with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Charles Farr.

Milton Allen, No. 4, eliminated C. Griffin, 6-4, 6-2, and Jack Bledsoe, No. 5, beat Charles Cox, 6-1, 6-1.

RESULTS.
Plott Brice beat Bill Albee, 6-2, 6-1; Paul Gleason beat Charles Farr, 6-4, 6-2; Milton Allen beat C. Griffin, 6-4, 6-2; Jack Bledsoe beat Charles Cox, 6-0, 6-1; Byron Couch beat Hugh Farmer, 6-0, 6-1; Paul Smith beat Al Kennamore, 6-4, 6-3; Ray Behm beat Hardin, default; Ed Garner beat Sid Underwood, 6-1, 6-1; Clark Tucker beat Bob Morris, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3; Joel Dean beat Bob Davis, 6-3, 6-2; Graham Roberts beat Crowell, default; Roger Mellon beat Ben Lee, 6-3, 6-0; Paul Gleason beat Ray Behm, 4-4, 6-6, 6-3.

ATHENS GOLFERS PLAY WEDNESDAY

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 16.—(P)—A record entry list was indicated today for the annual invitation golf tournament of the Athens Country Club, which opens here Wednesday.

According to Frank Dudley, chairman of the tournament committee, more than 100 shot-makers from all parts of Georgia will play in the three-day event.

Dick Hackett, Rome star, is also entered and one of the favorites.

Play will consist of 18 holes of qualifying Wednesday, two 10-hole matches Thursday, semi-finals Friday morning and finals Friday afternoon. Prizes will be awarded winners and runners-up in each flight, and a prize will be awarded the medalist.

Each flight will be composed of 16 players.

VETERAN DRIVER DIES.

PITCHERS HOLD CRACKERS' KEY IN FINAL DRIVE

Beckman Sets Pace Since August 1; Durham Effective.

By HAROLD FOREMAN.
Figuring August 1 to have been the start of the final stretch drives for first division berths, it is interesting to note the progress of the Crackers and especially that of the pitching staff.

The Crackers as a team have not fared any too well. Since the first of the month, they have broken even in their contests, winning eight and losing a like number. But through this somewhat dim showing, there gleams a light of hope that might easily carry the home boys to second place.

This ray of hope comes from the brilliant showing of four Cracker hurlers who have been rated as cly in-and-outers up to this point. They are Beckman, Durham, Leonard and Harris.

THREE WINS.
As might be expected from past records of other years, Beckman, who is really Sweet William now, is leading the fight for the other hurlers to follow. He has started and won three games without suffering a defeat and has allowed but five runs in 27 innings.

Bobby Durham is running a close second with three wins and one defeat and has been pitching sensational ball. He has allowed five runs in 30 innings. Emil Leonard is definitely back in form, even while he has just broken even in four games, he has looked like the Leonard of last year and should be extremely hard to beat from here out. Harris has not won a game and neither has he lost one, but just look at what he has done in 10 innings of relief pitching—allowed but one run. Pretty hard to beat that.

MOON ON OFF.
Moon is in a slight slump but there is little reason to worry as he is a veteran and should come back strong. Miller will be back soon and his demonstration of the other night ranks him as one of the stoutest hearted pitchers in baseball. Trexler appears to be gaining weight and should soon take the tiring line again. Williams has been returned to the Philadelphia A's, being unable to round into shape.

Here are the records for the Cracker moundsmen for the August games to date:

Beckman 3 w. 1 pct. 27 7 5
Durham 4 3 1 .750 20 1 5
Leonard 4 2 2 .500 27 1 13
Moon 3 0 3 .000 18 10 10
Williams 4 0 2 .000 11 18 18
Miller 4 0 0 .000 11 8 1

Joe DiMaggio Zaharias Out Pays Louis Visit To Flatten Luttrell

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Aug. 16.—(UP)—Two fellows named Joe, each of national renown because of unusual hitting ability, met here today and it was difficult to figure which enjoyed the greater thrill.

Joe DiMaggio, who knocks 'em out of the ball yard, made a surprise call on Joe Louis who knocks 'em out in the ball yard. Each will be swinging from the heels at the Yankee Stadium soon, DiMaggio returning to work tomorrow and Louis a week from Thursday against Tommy Farr.

"Hope you win your bout with Farr," Yankee Joe told Detroit Joe.

"Looks as if you had your fight already won," answered Louis. "But you'll have to admit, Joe, that you Yanks were lucky winning three in a row from my Tigers on their last visit at the stadium. I saw all those games and we outthrew you in every one."

Louis was entertaining friends when informed that DiMaggio had arrived. He promptly bowed out and stayed with the Yankee outfielder through a two-hour visit.

Another Zaharias, Chris, brother of George, will take on Sammy Curry, Jewish wrestler, in the 30-minute opener.

The attractive semiwindup will bring together Doble Osborne, a Texan, and Dan O'Connor, the fighting Irish ace.

By all odds, this card should be even greater than the one witnessed last week by almost 2,500 fans at Ponce de Leon park.

ALL-STARS WIN.
Piedmont All-Stars defeated Adair Bears, 5 to 3, Monday afternoon at Grant Park. McNorton, of the All-Stars, struck out eight men.

Score by innings: 010 020 30x—5 9 7
Adair 100 010 010—3 8 1

BEER AND WINE PERMIT DISPUTE REACHES IMPASSE

Police Committee and City Council Differ Over Trio of Revocations.

An impasse between the police committee and city council on revocation of beer and wine permits had apparently been reached yesterday when council again referred back to the committee recommendations for revoking three beer and wine permits.

The council, during a routine session yesterday, followed the committee's recommendation in revoking three permits. But three others which Mayor Hartsfield had personally advocated be revoked, were referred once more. Alderman Robert Carpenter asked that the permit of Mrs. E. L. Jones, at 102 Harris street, be sent to the committee again for further consideration. Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen requested that recommendations for revoking the permits of Ralph Burnside at 359 Fair street and the Teeny Weeny at Forrest avenue and Courtland street be referred.

Three Are Approved. Council approved revoking the permits of places at 1010 Pryor street, at 777 Gordon street and 302 Highland avenue. Condemnation of sidewalks on Broad street from Marietta to Mitchell was approved and Councilman George Lyle's request for $6,000 additional for street improvements throughout the city was referred to the finance committee.

Finances of the city auditorium were set up. Authorization for bids for repairing the lobby and front entrance of the building was given after council had approved transfer of $4,500 for this purpose and also set up $1,030 for operating expenses. Councilman John A. White announced the auditorium will be opened August 28. An ordinance making it illegal to damage or deface the furnishings and walls of the remodeled auditorium was adopted.

Deeds Are Accepted. Deeds to land for widening the Piedmont avenue 12 feet were accepted from the Piedmont Driving Club, and $200 was set up for re-setting shrubbery which will have to be moved in eliminating the traffic "bottle neck."

Giving the hospital committee, of which Councilman Frank Beck is chairman, jurisdiction over the health department and taking this duty away from the sanitary committee, of which Alderman Roy Callaway is chairman, was proposed in an ordinance by Councilman Wilson. The proposal was referred to the ordinance committee with little debate.

Anderman Carpenter was unsuccessful in an attempt to obtain a $10 a month increase for 16 policemen who are to shoo men in the detective department. The adverse report of the finance committee, which he sought to override, was tabled after discussion. Another paper to raise the pay of police captains and lieutenants was ruled out after Councilman Frank Wilson asserted such salaries are set by law each December for the following year and cannot be changed legally during the year.

Sewer Proposal Killed. Council killed by filing the offer of the city to shoo men one-third the cost of the sewer disposal plants after the completion of the Peachtree creek sewer line and the Clayton plant. Anderman Frank Reynolds said a similar offer is being studied by the sewer committee. City and county officials have been able to reach any agreement as to the amount Fulton will pay in the upkeep and maintenance of the metropolitan sewer system.

EX-CONVICT HERE FACES U. S. CHARGE

Sherman Callaway Held as Kentucky Lawyer Is Arrested.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(P)—Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today special agents in Louisville, Ky., had arrested Allen K. Jones, an attorney, for conspiracy to deliver a federal prisoner.

The conspiracy charge also named Sherman Callaway, escaped member of a Georgia chain gang and former Kentucky convict. He has been held in the Jefferson county jail at Louisville since July 12 for attempted robbery of a Cincinnati and Nashville mail train. Hoover said in a statement that Callaway paid Jones $150 for smuggling a .38 calibre revolver into the jail.

The Bureau of Investigation said Callaway admitted he was sentenced to serve two years in the Kentucky reformatory, Frankfort, in 1926 for malicious wounding and attempt to kill, and that he escaped in January, 1930, from jail in Watkinsville, Ga., where he was under sentence for murder.

Records Here Show Callaway Arrested. Atlanta police records showed last night that Sherman Callaway, seized on a charge of conspiracy to deliver a federal prisoner, had been arrested here in 1929 and sentenced to the chain gang under the name of Roy Smith.

He was sentenced December 15, 1929, to from three to five years for possession of burglary tools. Complaint was Kingan & Company, packers.

The record failed to account for the period between his sentence and his next recorded arrest, as "Charlie Williams" at Butler, Pa., in June, 1932.

GEORGIA COURT BILL GOES TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The Russell bill, creating a Brunswick division of the federal court in the southern district of Georgia, was on its way to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature, after the house late today passed the measure, which received the approval of the senate some days ago.

When the unanimous consent calendar was called in the lower chamber this afternoon, Representative Braswell E. Deen, of Alma, moved that the senate bill be substituted for the house measure which was reported favorably by the judiciary committee. The Deen motion was carried without opposition and the senate bill passed unanimously.

Besides creating a Brunswick division of the federal court, the bill transfers Clinch county from the Waycross division of the southern district to the Valdosta division of the middle district.

Adjudged the best among the Boys' 4-H Clubs of Fulton county, 18 youthful farmers will spend this week at the State Agricultural College in Athens as guests of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club.

The winners were entertained at a luncheon given by the club yesterday. More than 125 youths participated in the agricultural and live stock contest, which was conducted by County Agent S. D. Truitt and the Kiwanis Club's agricultural committee.

200 PLANES ROCK SHANGHAI SECTOR

American-Trained Fliers of China and Japanese Engage in 'Dogfights.'

By JOHN R. MORRIS. (Copyright, 1937, by United Press.) SHANGHAI, Tuesday, Aug. 17. The greatest aerial war in the history of the orient was under way around this city with more than 200 Japanese and Chinese planes engaged.

Japanese claimed they had shot down or destroyed more than 25 Chinese planes while the Chinese war office in Nanking said that 26 Japanese planes, mostly bombers, had been shot down by Chinese pursuit ships while the Chinese losses were only five planes since the fighting started here nine days ago.

Foreign-Trained Fliers. American-trained Chinese fliers, described as superior to the Japanese, were engaging the Nipponese naval pilots in five separate areas. Many of the Japanese fliers are British-trained.

Air battles were reported over Nanking, Hangchow, Shanghai proper and on both the east and west banks of the Whangpoo river, below the city.

The general aerial operations started by the Chinese Saturday had been broadened until the air war had assumed an importance even greater than that on land. The Japanese naval attacks, in a communique, said that imperial squadrons had bombarded the airport at Kashing, destroying 10 Chinese planes. They shot down three additional Chinese planes in a battle near the airport.

Air Fights Raging. Another Japanese squadron bombed the Chinese long-range artillery positions at Paoshing, on the Yangtze, northwest of Shanghai.

A fourth squadron bombed Chinese artillery and a division of the Chinese militia composed of former troops of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, ex-dictator of Manchuria, north of Hongkew park in the International Settlement.

Other squadrons attacked the Chinese positions in Pootung, opposite Shanghai's international bund, with bombs and machine guns.

Chinese planes bombed the Japanese landing wharf near the Japanese consulate general and caused considerable damage. H. R. Elkins of the United Press, who was near the spot, counted the bodies of nine Russian guards employed by the Japanese and nine Chinese after the explosion.

Two Japanese naval officers were wounded. The number of Japanese planes in the air tended to confirm reports that a second Japanese aircraft carrier had arrived off the port.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Nanking dictator, ordered his entire air force into the battle yesterday in an effort to "blast the Japanese out of the Shanghai area within 48 hours," but after half that time had elapsed it appeared the Chinese had a long way to go.

HIGH PRAISE GIVEN AIR MAIL WEEK HERE

Event Officially Comes to Close; Success of Venture Assured.

Georgia Air Mail Week came to an official close at midnight, but the end is not yet in sight. Official reports on success of the venture which aroused enthusiasm of Postoffice Department officials at Washington will not be in hand until today but Postmaster Lon Livingston, Georgia air mail chairman, exulted last night.

"It's a success. Department officials are enthusiastic. They haven't been able to say enough about the handling of air mail week. They are enthusiastic about the publicity."

Every paper in the 33 pick-up cities for last Monday's trial feeder air mail flights responded nobly. Then, too, the press in the smaller towns, 100 or more in number which contributed to the 15,000 volume of dispatch handled for the occasion did its part.

As phrased by Wiley West, Decatur postmaster and Georgia chairman of the National Association of Postmasters: "We got into the homes."

That was the primary objective. Banks and business houses were fully aware and were exploiting the advantages of air mail. It was the homes, the Mr. and Mrs. and J. Public of rural and urban Georgia that postoffice authorities were anxious to reach.

First cover collectors rushed to mail letters for air mail cancellation. Each town had its special cachet or cancellation. These are sought, and some towns sent in loads of air mail by train to get the Atlanta postmark. Mail here was handled by an extra crew at Candler field.

Macon was so eager to get its mail in that Postmaster W. A. Feltulo and a party flew in a special plane to "rescue" Captain Dick Felt, pilot loaned for the occasion, into Macon and thence to Atlanta.

WATER SPOUT KILLS 4; 50 REPORTED INJURED

RIMINI, Italy, Tuesday, Aug. 17. (UP)—Four children were reported killed and 50 persons injured today when a waterspout struck numerous beach resorts along the Adriatic coast.

The villages of Borgovechio, Bellario, and Iglesmarina suffered the greatest damage. Houses were torn to bits. Hundreds of bathing cabanas were destroyed. Damage ran into millions of lire.

One of them exploded near the warship and fragments swept the cruiser's decks, killing a warrant officer and wounding five sailors. The formation then split and three of the planes flew toward Woosung where we heard terrific explosions.

The other two flew over the Japanese defense area and one dropped a bomb near the Japanese consular police headquarters where two Japanese were wounded. The other dropped its bombs farther north in Hongkew.

Japanese planes bombed the Japanese landing wharf near the Japanese consulate general and caused considerable damage. H. R. Elkins of the United Press, who was near the spot, counted the bodies of nine Russian guards employed by the Japanese and nine Chinese after the explosion.

Two Japanese naval officers were wounded. The number of Japanese planes in the air tended to confirm reports that a second Japanese aircraft carrier had arrived off the port.

REVAMPING BILL BOGS IN SENATE

Barkley Sounds 'Taps' Over Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(UP) Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, today blew taps over President Roosevelt's hopes for government reorganization legislation at this session of congress.

A few hours after the senate committee named to study Mr. Roosevelt's demands had agreed on a bill less potent than that sought by the chief executive and that proposed by the late Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, Barkley announced there would be no senate action on the proposal before adjournment.

The house has passed a bill giving Mr. Roosevelt six White House secretaries and two-year authority to merge or abolish emergency bureaus and commissions.

The purpose of this action was described in a letter from the management to stockholders as being to provide new equipment, plant rearrangement, working capital and other requirements for the firm to enter the medium-priced field with a line of cars selling from $700 to $1,000.

Celestial Revolt Is Seen as Cook Turns on Heat

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(P)—A revolt of the angels in the various "heavens" of Father Divine—if not the abandonment of the whole celestial kingdom by the head man himself—was predicted in court today by Counselor Lesselbaum.

Lesselbaum, attorney for Verinda Brown, a negro cook, has been trying for some weeks to collect $4,000 from the "mission" of Father Divine, negro cult leader of Harlem. She says she gave Father Divine that amount in consideration of his personal undertaking to guarantee her eternal life and that she has become skeptical of the project.

Lesselbaum, tired of it all, asked the supreme court today to tie up all the divine heavens—quite substantial pieces of real estate hereabouts—in a receivership.

He claimed it looked like Father Divine might be preparing to quit the heavens, quoting him as saying in a speech: "Now when and wheresoever I withdraw myself from the presence of the people my work and my mission there will be no doubt a civil war, a revolutionary war and a race war combined."

INDICTED IN STRANGLING. NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(P)—Simon Elmore, 57-year-old jobless painter, was indicted today on a charge of first-degree murder for the assault-strangling of Joan Kuleba, 4. The trial date was not set.

GIRL LEAPS TO DEATH FROM 180-FOOT SHAFT

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(P)—Baltimore's historic Washington monument claimed its seventh suicide victim today when an 18-year-old girl leaped from the top of the 180-foot shaft. The victim, Harriet Poole, Y. M. C. A. business school student, remained conscious almost two hours before she died in Mercy hospital. On the observation platform atop the monument, police found her pocketbook and a note, reading: "For the benefit of the coroner! This is a legitimate suicide and not an accident."

BRUCE BARTON MAY GET G.O.P. NOD FOR HOUSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(P)—Bruce Barton, nationally known advertising executive, was reported today in political circles as the choice of Republican leaders for nomination to congress from the 17th New York district. A vacancy was created by recent death of Theodore A. Peyser, Democrat, who had represented the mid-Manhattan area often called the "silk stocking district" because of the number of wealthy residents.

'The Big Apple' Dance Makes Hit With Atlantans in Asheville, N. C.

By Sally Forth

"THE BIG APPLE," that happy mixture of barn dance and break-down, has caught on with a whoop up in Asheville, N. C., one of Sally's Atlanta scouts reports. Almost overnight the dance floors of hotels and country clubs, which had been crowded with couples "standing around" to music as though they were decrepit, have been waked to life and gay movement. Boredom in dancers' faces has given place to merriment, all the stags are coming in from the porches, and the old people, looking on, are wishing out loud that they were young again to "frack" and to "shine."

"They say" that the big apple, like so many of the modern fads in dancing, beginning with the cakewalk, was taken over from the colored race, and that it got its title from one of their dance halls. Whatever the source—and its carefree jollity, its spirit of improvisation, suggests that its derivation may be true—its popularity is sweeping the southern resorts, and dancers from other sections in Asheville are deliberately learning it to take it home, and to be "first" in introducing it in Baltimore, Washington, and even Philadelphia.

Golf took some of Georgia's best players to Asheville the past week, including the state champion, Frank Mulherin, of Augusta, who has been starting in the Blount Forest Country Club tournament. Atlanta men playing in the same event include Charles Currie, Grover Middlebrooks, Russell Bridges Jr., H. F. Jones, J. M. Calloway, Frank P. Boyce, H. F. Whitmore, Joe Horacek, Willis Callaway, J. M. Callaway and P. C. McDuffie.

ADVENTURE IN LOVE

By KATHRN BEEMIS WILSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

As Reed Wilkins rises at a dinner at his Chicago Gold Coast home to announce the engagement of his 18-year-old daughter, Velma, to a handsome, 25-year-old man, the man's name is Velma's father. The man's name is Velma's father. The man's name is Velma's father.

thulism, she led the way back to her modernistic office. She sat down at her black glass desk, and waved Velma to a red metal chair.

Slowly, she opened and read Clarence's letter. She appeared to hesitate.

She inquired finally, "Do you think you'd like working here? It's not easy—the hours are long on rush days."

"I'm sure I'd be happy," murmured Velma, fervently praying she might be accepted for the position.

Velma was in the stockroom, selecting gowns suitable for her modeling on this important occasion when her eye caught a weather report on the front page of a newspaper lying on a chair.

"Let's hope it won't rain tomorrow," she said to Jane Henry, a striking brunet model, with her arms full of crimson chiffon.

"We should worry," said Jane indifferently.

Velma matched up the paper and began reading. "Fair and warm—"

She paused, paled, as another item blazed before her stricken gaze. "Oh, no!" she cried. "How—how could he?"

Jane Henry drawled in her husky voice, "Anything wrong?"

Velma could not reply. She was reading again the announcement of the engagement of Miss Louise Clark to Mr. Thomas Orville.

She swayed dizzily, would have fallen had not Jane caught her around the waist.

Jane hurried her out of the small stuffy room. She called Miss Forland. They put Velma into a taxi and sent her to her room in the Young Women's Christian Association to rest until morning.

Velma, fully dressed, lay on her bed until 7 o'clock that evening. If she could sleep in sleep the miserable pain in her heart! But she could not sleep, she could not weep, she could do nothing but lie here and think—think in circles. Tom was forever lost to her. Louise Clark had won. What was life going to be without Tom? For so long she had been planning with Tom in the background of her thoughts. Always, there had been the conviction that in the end she and Tom would unravel all their difficulties.

INSTALLMENT XVI

Mae Forland was a tall, arrogant woman of not less than 40, pretending with her bobbed, hen-naed hair, plucked eyebrows and wide staring eyes to be far under the unwelcome age. She was, in grooming and poise, smartness personified. Her sharp-pointed features were prominently accented by a face haggard from relentless dieting. But her black wool frock fitted her beautifully thin figure like a glove, and she moved too quickly and efficiently to allow any one, particularly customers, to dwell on much else but what they came to the shop to think about. Clothes! The Forland Shoppe had them in imported models, in domestic models, in models that any woman, and quite frequently men, couldn't resist purchasing, in spite of the high price scale for a small city like Carryville.

Velma was intrigued with the deep-napped carpet, modernistic metal deck chairs, and crystal and chromium electroliers. She adored the small glass tables holding perfumed cigarettes, red matches and yellow ash trays, and the exquisitely appointed miniature stage for the peddling of fashionable wearing apparel. It seemed utterly Parisian and much too good to be which Clarence Pell had directed true—this charming little shop to her.

She gave Mae Forland one of her most engaging, vivacious smiles and said, "I have a letter from Mr. Pell. He thought you might need a model."

Miss Forland tried to fix Velma with the formidable glance she fastened on all persons in her employ. It kept them in their places, she felt. But this pretty girl, standing so eagerly before her, was so happy a surprise that she nearly unbent. Clarence and she had had a lengthy telephone conversation last night concerning the hiring of Velma Wilkins, and Mae had been skeptical. She couldn't believe that Clarence was a good judge of women. Why! The girl was a find! She had everything! She had beauty, clothes sense and elegance of manner that would put the finishing touches on this smart salon.

Trying not to show this en-

She went on winged feet across the velvet carpet. She had a job! She had a wonderful job in interesting surroundings. And the salary, compared to what the Clarks had been paying her, was a fortune. There might be an opportunity, also, to purchase her clothes at cost—that is, if she ever needed to acquire more clothes; her wardrobe as yet was more than ample.

She often wondered these days about the outrageous extravagance of the old Velma. Yet myriad people had been recompensed for furnishing her wardrobe, saddle horses, motor cars and their appendages and upkeep. Had her father lived, by this time she might have been flying her own plane. Yes, she probably had supported whole families by her mad expenditures. Spending money no doubt did make the world go around. Anyway, it made her glad to think she had once been in the position to help so many people.

Velma found her new work intriguing and exciting enough to prevent her from thinking too often about much she wished to forget. Miss Forland was not quite so awe-inspiring when she got to know her, and the two other girls who modeled and the three saleswomen were all pleasant associates.

A little rebelliously, now and then, Velma thought of Tom, cruising about these dreary fall days with the flirtatious and clinging feminine Louise. The nights would be moonlit, the air just cool enough for cuddling companionship. And how Louise would cuddle! She—she hated Louise!

PIRATES OF DAYS GONE BY.
II—The Terrible Morgan.

It would be hard to say who was the most cruel and wicked pirate who ever sailed the seas, but Henry Morgan has been called "the worst."

Henry Morgan wearing some of his ill-gotten finery.

Born in Wales 300 years ago, Morgan ran away from home during his boyhood, and obtained work on a vessel which sailed to the West Indies. He landed in Barbados. After a few years there, he went to Jamaica, and that island in later years was his chief headquarters. It was a British colony, but pirates thronged there from far and near.

tured in a most terrible way, being cut, burned, stretched, or hung by their thumbs. The purpose of the torture was to make them tell where they had hidden their money, jewels, or other treasure.

Under the horror of being tortured, some prisoners told the pirates where to look for valuables. Others said they had no money left in the world, and were tortured until they died.

The black-hearted Morgan seemed to care nothing for the pain of his victims. He was filled with an insane greed for gold. Let the prisoners pay, or let them die in agony!

Morgan and his fellow pirates captured forts as well as towns. Everywhere they left sorrow and suffering. People were afraid of the very name of the leader.

Not only did Morgan rob and murder—he also cheated his own crews. Often the plunder was worth many thousands of dollars, and the pirates expected to be richly rewarded for their ugly work. Their chief, however, took most of the plunder for himself.

Later in his life, Morgan turned traitor to his former comrades. By means of a heavy bribe, he managed to get himself made a government official in Jamaica. Then he used government vessels to capture pirates, and ordered the captives hanged. At the same time, he is said to have let certain pirates go on with their work, and to have shared in their booty.

Japanese Bonds Dip

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(P)—A sharp crack in Japanese bonds disturbed the midsummer slumber of the bond market today.

Losses ranging to nearly 5 points were registered in the Japanese list in the widest Japanese since the Sino-Japanese hostilities began to take headline news.

Slide followed a drop in London. Dealers said some liquidation came from abroad and apparently had been influenced by reports Japan was planning to extend its controls over industry and finance as an emergency measure.

Most domestic corporate bonds also pointed downward in narrow trading, but United States Treasury issues marshaled a little rallying power to finish with moderate gains.

Down fractionally to more than a point were American Telephone 3 1/4s, Santa Fe general 4s, Bethlehem Steel 3 3/4s, and Baltimore & Ohio 4 1/2s.

All day, however, the market was dominated by the Japanese list, which was down 4 to 5 points in larger dealings and 1 1/2 to 2 points in smaller ones.

Losses of 3 to 4 points were off 1 1/2 to 2 points in the Japanese list in the widest Japanese since the Sino-Japanese hostilities began to take headline news.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT

No. 44

When Tarzan felt those suspicious strips in the floor, he started to retreat to the room he had just quit. Too late! Cords sprang up around him. They pulled at him and tripped him, so that he fell. Then he felt them closing and tightening about him.

The mighty Jungle Lord struggled to escape, but it was no use. He was completely enmeshed in a web of rawhide strands. The simple but effective trap, he presumed, was operated by a rope from the next room, and probably had been sprung by the very Woola himself.

This room, he surmised, was devoted solely to the purposes of the net, forming the magician's final protection against an enemy who sought his life. Whoever was caught in the net was rendered entirely helpless, and could be easily murdered at Woola's will.

The door of the third room opened. There stood Woola, a crude lamp in his hand. His death's head face was contorted in a snarling grin. He surveyed the helpless ape-man and squeaked: "You court an earlier and more horrible death than we had planned for you!"

A-T-T-E-N-T-I-O-N

AN OLD established corporation manufacturing a nationally advertised line of white and palmated. Due to ex-

cessful expansion and increasing sales of territories and merchandising policies,

we are seeking applications from experienced salesmen.

WE PREFER a salesman experienced in our line. However, applicants with a clean record and proven sales ability will be given thorough consideration.

WE DO NOT need or want a "high pressure" salesman as our line backed consistently by national advertising requires only intelligent presentation to our accounts.

TO THE successful applicant we offer a territory consisting of an established

ONLY those applicants having an automotive and stating thoroughly their qualifications and past sales records will be given consideration. Write in strictest confidence to B-217, Constitution.
